FEDERAL RESERVE TO RELEASE FUNDS

6 IN BOETTCHER KIDNAPING FACE CHARGES OF U.S.

2 Wives Among Accused as Hideout Is Found and Arrests Made.

ONE SUSPECT TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Cases Will Be Carried On Under Newly Enacted Lindbergh Law.

Denver, March 7 (A.P.).—Federal charges of kidnaping were filed against six suspects in the Charles Boettcher 3d kidnaping in the United States District Court here late today.

The charges were filed by United States District Attorney Ralph L. Carr, against Carl W. Pearce, Arthur Youngberg, Gordon Elkhorn, Mrs. Ruth Kohler, Verne Sankey and Mrs. Verne Sankey.

Hideout House Found.

Three of those named in the charges are held in jail here as the result of an investigation which terminated today in the announcement by Chief of Police Albert T. Clark that the hideout of the kidnap gang, an isolated ranch house, had been discovered in a wild region of South Dakota.

There, the police head said, the wealthy young broker was held during his sixteen days' captivity which ended in the payment of $60,000 ransom March 1.

Suspect Tries Suicide.

One of the accused persons, Youngberg, who attempted suicide by slashing his wrists and throat when he was discovered in the hideout, is en route to Denver with police officers. Sankey, alleged owner of the hideout, is being sought, along with Elkhorn, 33, alleged to be one of the men who guarded Boettcher at the ranch house.

United States District Attorney Carr said the cases against the suspects would be tried under provisions of a new Federal kidnaping law passed by the last session of Congress, commonly known as the "Lindbergh law."

Americans Suffer At Hands of Nazis

U. S. Citizen Beaten and 2 Others Complain of Raid on Quarters.

Berlin, March 7 (A.P.).—Complaints were filed at the American embassy today by three Americans, who said they had been mistreated by National Socialist police in uniform, Nathaniel Wolff, of Rochester, N. Y., said he had been beaten and carried to an apartment, where he was held captive until a Nazi leader appeared and ordered his release. He was forced to sign a statement absolving the Nazis, he said, and then was ordered to leave Germany. He went to France.

Henry Sattler, of New York City, and Edwin Dakin, of Hannibal, Mo., reported that armed Nazis had forced their way into their apartments early in the morning and demanded explanations of "anti-Nazi attitudes."

United States Ambassador Sackett said the embassy is taking every precaution to protect American citizens.

Russia Hints Enmity Of U. S., Quitting Quiz

Spurns Sino-Japanese Commission Because of "Hostility."

Moscow, March 7 (A.P.).—The Soviet government tonight refused to participate in the League of Nations consultative commission in the Sino-Japanese conflict because of what was termed the "hostility" of the majority of the participants toward the Soviet Union.

Without mentioning the United States by name but obviously referring to the absence of diplomatic relations with Washington, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff declared in a note to the league that it was impossible "for the moment to join in the decisions of the league when 13 out of the 22 participants in the consultative commission maintain no relations with the U. S. S. R., and therefore are hostile to it."

The Soviet always has contended the United States had as great a stake in the Far East as this country. Stressing the Moscow government's policy of neutrality in the present conflict, the note continued:

"The Soviet government will always solidly support the actions and suggestions of international bodies and separate governments aiming to solve the conflict and to safeguard peace in the Far East."

STAR WITNESS GONE IN SCOTTSBORO CASE

Alabama Judge Grants Plea for Change of Venue and Picks Decatur.

Huntsville, Ala., March 7 (A.P.).—Mystery enveloping the disappearance of Miss Ruby Bates, young textile operator and a principal witness for the State in the "Scottsboro case," deepened today as police met a blank wall in their efforts to pick up her trail.

Mrs. Mary Bates, mother of the girl, told investigators her daughter left home on Monday night, February 27, and that she had not been heard from since. Police said she did not appear unduly alarmed.

"I was afraid she had been kidnaped, and I wouldn't go to the police through fear," Mrs. Bates told officers this morning. She reiterated that she was afraid harm would come to herself or her daughter, she told police, and for that reason had kept quiet.

Scottsboro, Ala., March 7 (A.P.).—Judge A. E. Hawkins today granted a change of venue of seven Negroes in the "Scottsboro attack case," and designated Decatur as the site for the trials.

Denver Loan Sharks Threatened With Jail

Denver, March 7 (A.P.).—Reports that loan agencies were preparing to cash pay checks at a 10 per cent discount reached Rowland K. Goddard, head of the United States secret service here.

"If any such move is made," Goddard said, "the loan sharks behind it are going to jail. Such action would be in direct violation of the President's proclamation."

Sanity Quiz Faces Man In Threat to Roosevelt

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 7 (A.P.).—Authorities will order a sanity hearing for John Lavine, alleged to have mailed threatening letters to President Roosevelt. Federal agents took over the case and came here with the letters after Lavine had been arrested on another charge.

Physicians said the man had a disordered mind.

Holliday Remains On Philippines Job

To Assume Governorship Temporarily When Roosevelt Quits.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday gave John H. Holliday, of Missouri, an ad interim appointment to continue as Vice Governor of the Philippines.

The President accepted the resignation of Theodore Roosevelt as governor general and designated Holliday as acting governor general after Roosevelt sails from the islands on March 24.

Holliday was continued in office to await the arrival of Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut, who will take over the governor generalship after he completes his temporary appointment as Attorney General in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

SWANSON DECLARES FOR STRONGER NAVY

Will Keep Fleet in Pacific Until Far East Clears; Asks Treaty Strength.

(Associated Press.)

The predictions of naval experts that the United States will be 135 warships below its treaty allotment at the expiration of the London pact in 1936 will not be allowed to come true if Secretary Swanson has his say about it.

In his first pronouncement as head of the Navy Department the former chairman of the Senate Naval Committee in no uncertain terms yesterday said he would endeavor to bring the fighting fleet up to treaty strength.

"My opinion is that the fleet should be built up to the ratio laid down in London as soon as conditions permit," the Secretary stated in answer to a query. This was at Mr. Swanson's first conference with newspapermen since taking over his new post.

The London agreement of 1930 made provision for naval equality between the United States and Great Britain, while permitting Japan to build to a ratio of three-to-five with her two rival naval powers.

Secretary Swanson, as a delegate studied the disarmament problem at close hand in Geneva last summer. He is a believer in the ratio system and feels that this country should take advantage of her treaty rights to strengthen her forces as rapidly as

Japanese in Battle At Last Wall Pass

Chinese Clinging to Point Previously Reported Taken by Tokyo.

Tokyo, March 7 (A.P.).—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch said today that a battle for possession of Koupeikow, a pass in the Great Wall of China between Jehol Province and Peiping, started early today.

Some Japanese newspapers reported that Koupeikow had fallen. News from the front was that all other passes through the Great Wall had been captured by the Japanese invaders.

The Chinese were stubbornly resisting an attack by Gen. Kawahara's Sixteenth Japanese Brigade on Sanchienfang.

A Chinchow dispatch said that the main body of Lieut. Gen. Yoshikazu Nishi's division, which is occupying Jehol City, was sent to the aid of the Kawahara Brigade, along with planes from the Japanese base at Chinchow. Koupeikow is on the old imperial highway leading from Peiping to Jehol City.

SENATE G.O.P. FAILS TO OUST FOUR BOLTERS

Supporters of Roosevelt Put on Committees With Regulars.

INDEPENDENTS STAY AWAY FROM CAUCUS

Davis Leaves Appropriations Unit as Surprise; House Organization Today.

By BERNARD J. McDONNELL.

Regular Republicans of the Senate yesterday decided not to cast out of their party organization the independent Republicans who had bolted their party ticket and supported Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Decision to let the bolters remain in the party organization was reached twice, first in a party caucus attended by 22 of the regulars and again at a meeting of the Committee on Committees at which the independents were assigned places on committees and recognition given to their seniority of service in the Senate.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, had announced his purpose to put the question to issue at the party caucus, but he did not bring the question to a vote.

Reed Admits His Defeat.

"It was evident in discussion with the conference that for a variety of reasons my action would not carry," he said afterward. "That method of tackling the situation did not appeal to the members of the caucus."

After the meeting of the Committee on Committees, of which he was chairman, the Pennsylvanian again told newspaper reporters that he was licked and that, for various reasons, he was outnumbered by those who disagreed with his declaration that Republicans should be known by their actions rather than their desire to be called Republicans.

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, who has been assistant leader, was named floor leader, Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, was named vice chairman of caucus; Senator Frederick Hale, of Maine, was named secretary of the party caucus, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, was nominated for president pro tempore of the Senate, a nomination which will not be approved because the Democrats are in control and intend to elect Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, to the place.

Bolters Are Absent.

Members of the Committee on Committees, in addition to Senator Reed, included Senators Gerald Nye, of North Dakota; Arthur Capper, of Kansas; Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware; James Couzens, of Michigan; Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon; Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island; Roscoe C.

MORGENTHAU SEEKS TO REOPEN MARKETS

Calls Grain Exchange Heads for Parley Today to Ease Farm Impasse.

(Associated Press.)

A movement to reopen farm commodity markets was begun yesterday by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., new chairman of the Farm Board, who called heads of grain exchanges for a conference this morning.

Later, if efforts to set grain markets functioning prove successful, they will be extended to reopening live stock exchanges and other farm marts closed because of the banking holiday.

Meanwhile the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported that a swift increase in prices of raw materials for food appeared to have begun with the sources of supplies cut down by the closing of the markets. Generally, storage supplies are low because of the recent instability of farm prices, and in the case of perishables there is virtually no storage possible.

Heads of grain exchanges at Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City were invited to meet with Morgenthau, who said he has obtained a large number of telegrams from millers. Millers said they are unable to sell flour because closing of the markets prohibits their custom of hedging sales of flour against purchases of wheat.

Without an open market on wheat the millers feel they have no satisfactory basis for fixing flour prices, and that it is possible that flour sales at present levels would result in losses if wheat shoots upward when trading is resumed.

Morgenthau said "the use of scrip as well as other methods will all come up for discussion."

Morgenthau announced at the same time that the Grain Stabilization Corporation, through which the board attempted to "peg" the price of wheat, disposed of its last holdings of cash wheat during the past week, about 1,300,000 bushels. It still owns 30,391,000 bushels of futures.

State May Seize Plants for Relief

Gov. Comstock Frowns on Plan of Official to Lease Projects.

Lansing, Mich., March 7 (A.P.).—Attorney General O'Brien disclosed today that he is preparing a bill that would clothe Gov. Comstock with powers to take over idle manufacturing plants and lease them to communities as unemployment relief. The governor, however, announced that he was not in sympathy with the proposal.

"The time has not arrived when we must seize private property," the governor said.

Cherry Blooms Scheduled For Appearance at Easter

Present Weather Trend Indicates Date When Tidal Basin Becomes Mecca for Thousands Under Colorful Japanese Blossoms.

Cherry blossom time and Easter tide probably will coincide this year.

Propagating garden officials last night expressed the opinion that the yearly burst of colorful glory from the Japanese cherry trees, unless unforeseen freakish weather entervenes, will be at its peak on Easter Sunday—which falls this year on April 16.

The buds have been recently examined, it was said, and their present stage indicates that at least five weeks must pass before the blossoms transform the Tidal Basin area into a spacious bower of blossoms.

Last year the cherry blossoms began to appear around Potomac Park about April 6. The earliest they have been known to burst forth is March 27.

The combination of Easter and cherry blossom time together with a new administration in the White House is expected to bring unprecedented crowds to Washington this year. Railroad and steamship companies have already begun inquiries about the blossoms.

MONEYS FOR COMMERCIAL PAY ROLLS ARE INCLUDED; ACTION MAY AVERT SCRIP

Withdrawals for Necessities to Be Available.

STEP VIEWED AS VITAL ONE

Amount in Richmond Held Sufficient to Care for Needy.

By DAN B. MAHER.

The dull prospect of no pay for a few days for employes of private concerns in the District turned into radiant optimism early today when The Post learned that instructions were on the way to the Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond, Va., to release its resources to member banks so that funds be made accessible for absolute essentials, including pay rolls.

The result of action of the Treasury Department in throwing the resources of the Richmond Federal Reserve District, which includes the Capital, behind its member banks will be of transcendental importance.

It will mean that within 24 hours all local banks will be ready to permit withdrawals for all necessities of life and it will probably obviate the necessity of issuing scrip by the Washington Clearing House.

Deposits to Be Available.

Instruction to release its resources to members banks had not been received at the close of business last night by George Seay, governor of this Federal Reserve District, but The Post learned that the authorization was in the course of transmission early today.

An equally important consequence of the new regulation will be that all deposits of the local banks which are in safe-keeping at the Richmond District bank will be made available. Roughly estimated, these deposits approximate $10,000,000.

The immediate result of the new rule will be that Capital banks will be ready to adopt the regulation which permits withdrawals for food, medicine, relief or distress, for the payment of salaries, and necessary current expenditures for the purpose of maintaining employment.

Prepared to Comply.

Also, the Capital banks are prepared to comply with the conditions laid down by the regulations which are made precedent to the withdrawal of the deposits. These conditions are that they inform the Federal Reserve Bank of the amounts of coin and currency on hand, to inform as to the circumstances giving rise to the need

$100,000 Libel Suit Accuses Murray

State Senator Files Story of Governor in Plot of Impeachment.

Sapulpa, Okla., March 7 (A.P.).—A $100,000 libel suit against Gov. Murray was filed here today on behalf of State Senator Jennings, of Sapulpa.

Attached to the petition as an exhibit was an article written by Murray in his weekly newspaper, the Blue Valley Farmer, of February 23, which stated Jennings, five other senators and Lieut. Gov. Burns conspired to contrive impeachment of the governor through corruption of witnesses and bribery of the Legislature.

The accused officials were exonerated by the Senate after an investigation.

CASH APPARENTLY IS PLENTIFUL HERE

Average Rainy-Day Trade Is Enjoyed; Theaters Report Normal Attendance.

Surmounting the additional setback of rain, business continued unabated in Washington yesterday.

A survey of stores, theaters, filling stations and other business places revealed that the average rainy day trade was enjoyed. Cash seemed to be plentiful, bills of large denominations making their appearance on counters, charge accounts were liberally used and a large number of additional charge accounts were opened.

Theaters, chief dealers in small coins, had ample cash on hand to make change. Presentation of bills as large as $20 for one admission ticket was not uncommon, and no trouble was incurred in supplying the customer with his small cash.

A large F street theater reported a capacity business. Attendance at others in the immediate vicinity of the theater was up to normal. A slight decline in business was reported at some of the Ninth street houses.

Ten-cent stores and soda fountains accommodated as many customers as usual on a rainy day. Small cash was in demand at the ten-cent stores and large bills were not changed.

Indications that a great many people are planning to spend their evenings at home was evidenced by an increase in withdrawal of books from the public and circulating libraries and in a good sale of books and games at stores.

Chain stores found that the present situation does not demand any

Texas Merchants Open Bank to Deal in Scrip

Boy Is Strangled; Sailor Confesses

Body Found in Hotel Room in San Diego; Belt Used to Kill Child.

San Diego, Calif., March 7 (A.P.).—A 14-year-old boy, identified as J. P. McDonald, jr., was found strangled to death in a hotel room here today. A heavy leather belt had been used to garrote the boy.

While police were making a preliminary examination, a man who identified himself as Henry Francis Hoffman, 27-year-old sailor, telephoned them, saying, "I did that job at the Cortland Hotel."

Hoffman, attached to the U. S. S. Rigel, and a native of Fort Myer, Va., was taken to the hotel and confessed, police said, that he had strangled the boy with a belt.

PLAN IS NEAR FOR CONGRESS

Payments in Gold for Any Purpose Are Prevented.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Broad authority to resume essential operations was turned back to the banks of the United States yesterday.

Urgent commercial transactions may be handled in the regular way. Pay rolls may be disbursed. Blanket authority was extended to bankers to carry on all manner of operations tending to maintain employment, "and for other similar essential purposes."

Shortly before midnight the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board authorized the twelve regional banks to resume discount and currency operations within the limits of the regulations thus far promulgated by the Secretary of the Treasury under the emergency holiday proclamation.

For Limited Operation.

This far-reaching step signalizes the reopening of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks for limited operation, under the condition, however, that additional currency required by a member bank for the essential operations may be obtained only when the bank's gold and gold certificates are deposited with the Federal Reserve agent.

Sound currency thus moves back into the normal channels of circulation under Treasury control.

The use of scrip may be avoided.

While Treasury and Federal Reserve officials thus moved forward in their aggressive campaign to maintain trade, President Roosevelt laid before his Cabinet at a hastily summoned afternoon meeting the broad outlines of his legislative program for the special session of Congress.

Extension of Powers.

The President's plan has not yet been decided upon in detail, members of the Cabinet were informed. The general program, however, as it stood last night, was to seek an extension of the emergency control powers until the situation is completely stabilized by a long-time policy of banking reorganization.

Meanwhile, it is intended that the gradual relaxation of the Treasury supervision will provide facilities for a steadily broadening scope of banking operations.

Ways and means for issuing scrip on some basis of nation-wide exchange still baffled the Treasury conferees last night, but in the interim tentative authority has been promul-

PROGRESS TO REGAIN NORMALCY IS SHOWN

More Than Score of Banks in New York Reopen; Scrip in Some Cities.

(Associated Press.)

Banks started to reopen yesterday. Restricted operations in more than a dozen States were evidence of concrete progress in the Nation-wide campaign to restore normal financial and credit conditions as the basis for the return to prosperity.

Treasury Secretary Woodin authorized a limited reopening of banks so that vital business could be transacted and new deposits accepted.

Clearing house scrip, to supplement the currency in American pockets, is expected to be issued after Friday under a conditional Treasury announcement.

Continue Program Work.

Midway in the four-day national moratorium, President Roosevelt and his advisers continued work upon an emergency program to be placed before Congress tomorrow. Meanwhile, the Nation's gold supply was kept intact and hoarding was discouraged as vital steps in maintaining public confidence.

More than a score of banks reopened in New York City, major financial center. Chicago's big institutions were ready to resume business under the Treasury orders. Other States were ready to swing into line, once the key cities showed the way.

Scrip in Some Cities.

Scrip was already in circulation in numerous municipalities, helping overcome the handicap to business houses that followed the shortage of pocket change when holidays were proclaimed or withdrawals restricted last week in all States.

Security exchanges remained closed, but at Chicago's stock yards and other marketing centers for foodstuffs arrangements were made to continue operations. There were increases in some retail prices, but maintenance of adequate reserve supplies was guaranteed by the modifying orders from Washington.

Optimism at home was reflected abroad. London reported that quotations were comparatively higher on some American securities.

Mussolini Regime Stands By Dollar

Italy Begins Dealing in U. S. Money; Roosevelt Move Lauded.

Rome, March 7 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini rushed to Rome late last night from his home town Forli, where he had been resting several days, and called a midnight session with Guido Jung, minister of finance; Alberto Beneduce, president of the Institute of Industrial Reconstruction, and several others to discuss the situation created by the American banking holiday and the gold embargo.

The meeting decided that Italy would not place any restrictions on the dollar exchange. Accordingly, the exchange began dealing in dollars at noon, following receipt of quotations from London and Paris.

After lengthy discussion the premier expressed his confidence that the vigorous measures taken by the American administration would solve the problem and that conditions were fundamentally sound.

J. N. Steele, Baltimore Attorney, Dies in Florida

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—John Nelson Steele, 79, New York and Baltimore attorney and copper capitalist, died at a hospital here today after a brief illness.

His summer home was at Mamaroneck, N. Y., and he had a winter residence at Palm Beach. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Packer Beat Self On Head, Is Story

Chicago Man Used Rock in Suicide Attempt, His Chauffeur Says.

Gary, Ind., March 7 (A.P.).—Harry Manaster, 50, Chicago meat packer, was near death today from injuries which Chester Waters, his Negro chauffeur, said the packer inflicted by beating himself on the head with a rock in attempting suicide.

Waters said Manaster ordered him to drive to a lonely spot near Gary today and then left the car for a walk. The chauffeur said he saw his employer pound himself with a rock and fall unconscious. A note found in the injured man's pocket read: "Brother and family—Love, sorry. Dad."

The chauffeur said Manaster had been in ill health and had suffered financial reverses.

Mrs. Hoover Prefers "Grandma" to Ovations

Pasadena, Calif., March 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, retiring "First Lady," returned to her home State of California today, and said she preferred "hello grandma," to the cheers of millions.

Upon her arrival from Washington with her son, Herbert Hoover, jr., Mrs. Hoover was greeted by his three children. They all ran to be the first to kiss "grandma."

Gaston Act

Tourist 'Alphonses' Leave $25 Travel Check for $4 in Meals.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—A party of tourists, motoring North, stopped at a tea room here today, consumed $4 worth of food and tendered a $25 traveler's check in payment.

The tea room proprietor wanted pay for the food, but was reluctant to give out $21 in cash as change.

Finally, he told the tourists to keep the check and send him the $4 after banking conditions become normal.

Not to be outdone by such a display of generosity, the tourists then told the proprietor to keep the $25 check and send them the $21 balance when he is able to cash it.

Nations Have Met Money Crises in Various Ways

French Merchants Used Postage Stamps Wrapped in Waxed Paper for Small Change; Austrians Employed Coin-Like Tokens; Notes Also Circulated.

Some of the adjustments made and the devices created to keep business moving during money crises in foreign countries are outlined in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. In most cases, it is pointed out, the emergencies arose from causes entirely different from those operating in the United States at present. Often the foreign crises followed the sudden fall in value of the monetary units, or resulted from steady inflation.

"In France, following the World War," says the bulletin, "the need for small change was so great that thousands of merchants wrapped postage stamps in wax paper and used the packages as small change. The average client did not bother to open the paper, but took it for granted that there were four 25-centime stamps in the transparent packet handed to him in lieu of a franc, and in turn passed it on when he needed to make change.

"Both in France and in Austria local chambers of commerce and boards of trade issued small coinlike tokens as well as small paper notes like cigarette coupons. The contents of travelers' pockets became loose-leaf gazetteers of the cities along their routes.

"In the Russian Caucasus region, following the October revolution, small bills were in great demand, and money changers set up business, charging 20 rubles and more for changing thousand-ruble notes.

"In China, where different prices obtain in 'big money' and 'little money,' small change is always a nuisance. The value of each coin fluctuates, but one must carry 10 or 15 pounds of square-holed 'cash' as change for one gold dollar. They are strung on cords, 960 of them being counted as a thousand, the other 20 being the reward as a fee for counting the pieces and stringing them."

HOARDERS' NAMES MAY BE PUBLISHED

Step Discussed in New York as Means of Bringing Out Hidden Cash.

New York, March 7 (A.P.).—Publication of the names of the principal gold hoarders in the United States was discussed in New York banking circles today as one means of lifting the present so-called "Midas moratorium."

It is known that since 1915 the Federal Reserve Bank here has been recording the names of persons who withdrew gold in any sizable amounts. Through the cooperation of the banks, the Government, therefore, is in possession of all the facts and figures pertaining to the huge quantities of coin and metal now reposing in the vaults of the country.

In some quarters it has been suggested that a progressive tax on sequestered gold be imposed. The talk in the Wall street sector today, however, apparently favored publicity as the weapon which probably would be most effective in whipping the yellow doubloons out of their unnatural idleness.

FUNDS WILL BE ADVANCED

gated by Secretary Woodin for all clearing houses to issue their own scrip by Friday, if no national plan is announced before that time.

After his Cabinet meeting, President Roosevelt again held a two-hour conference with Secretary Woodin, Undersecretary Ballantine and George W. Davison, chairman of the Hanover Bank & Trust Co., of New York, an authority on scrip operations. After this conference it was announced that no final decision on the national clearance arrangement would be announced until this morning.

Reports that the whole project for intercity scrip had been abandoned still lacked official confirmation as the Treasury conference broke up at midnight, but bankers expressed the view that the resumption of Federal Reserve Bank operations today would make this step unnecessary.

The resumption order to the regional Reserve Banks was not formally published at the Treasury last night, but notice of its receipt by the New York and Richmond banks was officially confirmed in those cities.

Application of the order in the Richmond bank area means that funds for essential transactions in Washington will be released within the next 24 hours.

Carry Wide Powers.

The instructions to the Federal Reserve Banks carry wide discretionary powers to the regional boards of directors to enforce drastic regulations against hoarding of currency and to insure that the new Federal Reserve notes released in circulation shall be kept constantly in the channels of trade.

As interpreted by bankers in close touch with the Treasury conferences, the midnight order to the regional banks places a new face of encouragement upon the entire banking situation, and offers hope that continually broader banking operations may be authorized throughout the country from day to day.

The regulations also offer a compelling incentive for nonmember banks in sound condition to join the national banking system.

Seven more general orders were promulgated by the Treasury yesterday, and an eighth decision, in the form of an official Treasury statement (but not a formal banking order) directed all inquiries concerning interpretation of the emergency regulations to the respective Federal Reserve Banks, instead of to the Treasury directly.

Order No. 10 yesterday was by far the most sweeping thus far issued under the authority of the President's emergency proclamation. Within the general limitations that no gold payments shall be made for any purpose, and that every precaution shall be taken to prevent hoarding of currency, every bank, State or National, was authorized to "exercise its usual banking functions to such extent as its situation shall permit" to meet the essential needs of the community.

Complete Text of Order.

The complete text of Order No. 10, follows:

Any National or State banking institution may exercise its usual banking functions to such extent as its situation shall permit and as shall be absolutely necessary to meet the needs of the community for food, medicine, other necessities of life, for the relief of distress, for the payment of usual salaries and wages, for necessary current expenditures for the purpose of maintaining employment, and for other similar essential purposes; Provided, however, that—

(1) Every precaution shall be taken to prevent hoarding or the unnecessary withdrawal of currency;

(2) No State banking institution shall engage in any transaction under this regulation which is in violation of State or Federal law or any regulation issued thereunder;

(3) No national banking association shall engage in any transaction under this section which is in violation of Federal law or any order or regulation issued by the Comptroller of the Currency; and no gold or gold certificates shall be paid out.

(4) Each banking institution and its directors and officers will be held strictly accountable for the faithful compliance with the spirit and purpose as well as the letter of this regulation.

As unofficially interpreted, this order authorizes all banks, even before the end of the Presidential holiday tomorrow, to carry on to the limit of their resources.

The whole question thus becomes a matter of discretion with the respective banks, with each transaction handled in the light of the customer's standing, the nature of the business involved, and the state of the particular community in respect to the problem of currency hoarding.

Where money flows rapidly back to the banks, ample funds will be available; where unreasoning hoarding rules, banking transactions will be more difficult and business operations more rigidly curtailed.

Order No. 10 was issued following telegraphic reports from the twelve Federal Reserve Banks throughout the country that banking sentiment had shown vast improvement through Monday and yesterday and that the business community generally was alive to the urgent necessity for united action to drive out hoarding.

May Relax Further.

If the same improvement in general sentiment throughout the country is shown today, members of the Treasury conference said late last night, some further relaxation of the drastic Treasury control might be expected immediately.

The tentative order authorizing scrip issues by the various clearing houses stipulated that in no case should the emergency certificates issue against any but "sound assets of banking institutions."

The complete text of the scrip order (Regulation No. 12) follows:

Clearing house associations and other associations organized to provide an adequately secured medium of temporary exchange, are hereby permitted to issue certificates against sound assets of banking institutions, such certificate to be deliverable by each institution to its creditors and depositors on a pro rata basis, provided however, that no such certificates shall be issued before Friday, March 10, 1933, without the consent of the Secretary of the Treasury addressed to the Clearing House or other association proposing to issue such certificates, and further provided that this permission may be revoked in the event that a national plan to meet the existing emergency is proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury if in his opinion the success of such plan would be inconsistent with the operation of the certificate plan.

Another of Significance.

Another order of profound significance yesterday authorized all Federal Reserve Banks to resume normal operations as fiscal agents of the Federal Government in relation to bond conversions, registry and similar functions associated with financing the budget deficit.

This regulation was heralded in Treasury circles as signalizing the approach of an agreement on the March 15 financing. On that date some $694,000,000 in short-term loans mature. This order opens the way for the adjustment of these maturities through new issues.

The problem of new funds for the Federal Government, however, still remains to be dealt with in the Treasury regulations.

Foreign Branch Order.

Another order authorized banks to make a beginning on the resumption of business with their foreign branches. The parent banks in this country may deposit collateral at home to secure advances to their own foreign branches. In none of these advances may the American bank effect, in fact or theory, a transfer of credits to a foreign country. The principal purpose of the order is to permit foreign branches of American banks to maintain their liquid position during the period of the emergency. Broadly, the same rule applies to American branches in the insular possessions.

Under the final announcement of the day, which was more in the nature of a formal suggestion for simplifying procedure under the regulations, the Treasury placed considerable discretionary powers of interpretation in the hands of the twelve Federal Reserve Boards. Any inquiry concerning the emergency orders now must be directed to the regional bank in whose territory the question arises.

Through this arrangement the twelve scattered boards are given wide authority to apply the fourteen regulations now promulgated, with prudent regard for the peculiar local conditions at the point of the difficulty.

A notable feature of this set-up is that, under the broad authority of the President's proclamation, State banks, as well as national, are thus directed to the Federal Reserve System.

Viewed in their general terms, the entire series of Treasury orders points forcefully in the direction of a gradually unified banking system, and this development was marked yesterday in financial circles as a possible intimation of President Roosevelt's longer-view program.

The desirability of a unified banking system was stressed by the President in his address Monday to the governors' conference at the White House, and the 14 Treasury orders thus far issued suggest the operation of a fundamental policy to keep all banks, certainly for the duration of the emergency and perhaps permanently, under the supervision of the Federal Reserve Board.

All Subject to Control.

At present, every banking operation is by grace of the Treasury regulations, as authorized in the President's Sunday proclamation. Through these regulations the State banks now open for business are subject to the same degree of Federal control as the member banks.

Whether this unification will be continued after the lifting of the emergency powers of the President is a question for Congress.

Secondary regulations announced yesterday extended permission to banks and trust companies to resume trust department operations, but under condition that no fiduciary funds may be released for withdrawal.

Another order authorized the completion within individual banks, of check transactions dated prior to March 4, where such settlement does not involve the outpayment of money or currency.

Finally banks are authorized to return to their owners all papers and securities held in trust for safekeeping.

Commuters to Canada Are Searched for Gold

Detroit, March 7 (A.P.).—Commuters to Canada were startled today to find United States customs inspectors questioning each person at the ferry, tunnel and bridge entrance on the Detroit River.

"Got any gold?" was the question.

Inspectors said the questioning was in line with President Roosevelt's proclamation prohibiting the exportation of gold from the United States for the duration of the banking holiday. No seizure of gold was reported.

Title of Pennsylvania Play Proves Prophetic

Waynesboro, Pa., March 7 (A.P.).—"The Whole Town's Broke"—Center Township High School's annual class play—has been postponed for one week.

Pupils had worked long and hard to master their parts. The advance sale was hot heavy. Then the bank holiday made the title more true than funny.

"Maybe by next week the play won't carry so darned much significance," commented the disappointed players.

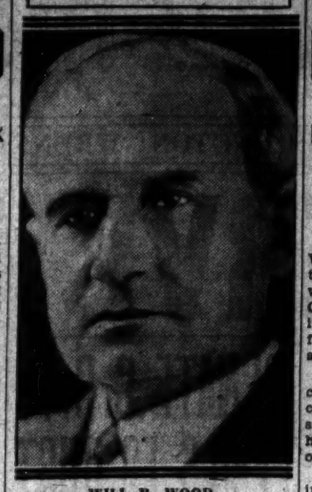
DIES AT 72 YEARS



WILL R. WOOD.

HURLEY AND MILLS TALK WITH HOOVER

Takes a Stroll Earlier Along Fifth Avenue, First One Without Guards.

New York, March 7 (A.P.).—Rest and a round of conferences—prefaced by his first stroll among fellow citizens in four years without a surrounding Secret Service guard—today made up Herbert Hoover's program as a private citizen.

The former President talked by telephone with Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, who is lending what aid he can in Washington. He held a protracted conversation, also, with Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, who arrived here this morning. But he gave no evidence of taking any further direct hand in national affairs.

Before most of Manhattan was awake today Mr. Hoover was abroad. He arose shortly after daybreak and left his apartment high in the tower of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel with only his secretary, Lawrence Richey, as a companion.

He strolled briskly up the almost deserted Fifth avenue, pausing now and then to gaze at some window display that interested him. He inspected from a distance the new development of Radio City. Several people recognized him and there were one or two greetings of "good morning, Mr. Hoover," and "good morning, Mr. President." He returned the salutations with nods.

WOOD'S BODY TODAY LIES IN STATE HERE

Former House Member Was Big Economy Advocate; Expires Suddenly.

Former Representative Will R. Wood, veteran of nearly half a century in National and State politics, who survived his retirement from Congress by only three days, will lie in state this afternoon at the Gawler funeral chapel, 1754 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The former representative and chairman of the Republican national congressional committee, was stricken suddenly in New York yesterday a few hours before he had expected to leave on a Mediterranean cruise.

His body will be returned to Washington at 6 a. m. today, accompanied by J. E. Barnes, of this city. No local services had been planned last night, although the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, and close friend of Mr. Wood, may say a brief prayer at the chapel. The body will be returned to Lafayette, Ind., tomorrow, for burial beside his wife.

Mr. Wood had been in Congress for eighteen consecutive years, and served a similar period in his State Legislature. In November he was defeated for reelection. He was chairman of the House Appropriations Committee before the Democratic victory.

An ardent advocate of retrenchment, Mr. Wood was one of the first to propose Federal pay cuts. He fought to the bitter end efforts which resulted in the abolition of the Bureau of Efficiency while a member of the conference on the Treasury-Post-office bill.

House Appropriations Chairman Byrns, House Republican Leader Snell, Representative Buchanan (Democrat), Texas; Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, and others joined in expressions of sorrow at his death and in eulogies of his ability.

Before death of the Seventy-Second Congress Saturday Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, praised him as "that great warrior who can reason with such unerring logic and such forceful eloquence on every topic on which he might engage in debate except one—and that is politics."

Mr. Wood, who was 72, began his public service more than 40 years ago as prosecutor of Tippecanoe County, Ind.

He was beaten in November for reelection to the House by George R. Durgan, Democrat, who yesterday was the first to receive word of his death at the Capitol from Miss Jessie Lovell, secretary to the Indiana representative.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Edward Morse, of Oxford, Ind., and Mrs. Fred Chancellor, of Stockland, Ill.

SCRIP MAY BE AVOIDED HERE; ORDERS SENT TO RICHMOND

for additional funds, and to deliver to the Federal Reserve Bank in exchange for coin or currency or for credit on its books, all gold and gold certificates held by such member bank in its own right.

The local banks, it was said, will not have to deliver any gold or gold certificates to the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank, so long as they do not attempt to withdraw in excess of the amount they have deposited for safekeeping in the reserve bank. The amount on deposit by the local banks was represented in informed banking quarters as being more than necessary for the function to which it will be devoted.

Declared Vital Step.

The partial opening of the reserve bank at Richmond was viewed by local bankers as a vital step in the restoration of normal banking activity in the District.

What is regarded as the most significant probable consequence of the new regulation, with respect to its reaction in the Capital, is that the issuance of scrip likely will be made unnecessary. Never in the Capital's history—even when virtually all large cities were using scrip in 1907—it was said, has the local clearing house issued scrip.

Even should the amount deposited in the Reserve Bank be inadequate to perform the functions permitted by the Treasury Department regulations, the local banks could obtain more Federal Reserve notes by depositing sound securities as collateral, thus obviating the necessity of local scrip, it was said.

Limited Withdrawals.

Because of the new regulation, every depositor will be permitted to withdraw such funds as are necessary for the essentials for current expenditures and for the essentials of life, but the banks will take every precaution to prevent hoarding or the unnecessary withdrawal of currency. However, no gold or gold certificates may be withdrawn.

The question of scrip has not been entirely abandoned here. A committee of the local Clearing House is still studying the question mostly as a preparatory move, in the event that its issuance be made necessary. All prominent bankers inclined to the belief that because of the release of local bank deposits from the Reserve vaults in Richmond, the scrip will be unnecessary.

Held Not Mandatory.

Before the instructions for the release of the assets in Richmond became known, the Clearing House Association took the view that the regulation to permit withdrawals for necessities was a permissive and not a mandatory measure. The association issued a statement that this regulation would not be immediately adopted in the District.

The whole complexion of the local banking situation will be changed as a result of the promulgation of the rule that the vaults of the Reserve Bank be opened so that Capital institutions may obtain the money.

Without releasing regulation, the District banks would have been placed in the position of paying out money on one hand, while on the other they would be prohibited from receiving money and would have been unable to get at their resources in the Reserve Bank.

Delay in Adoption.

The Capital banks have not yet adopted the rule of the Secretary of the Treasury, which allows the creation of special trust accounts for new deposits which would be subject to withdrawal upon demand. The delay, in its adoption, however, is caused by the mechanics of setting up the necessary accounting system.

The Clearing House Association last night issued the following important recommendations to its member banks:

That where settlement for checks charged by drawee institutions to the drawer's account on their books, before March 4, 1933, is incomplete, settlement may be completed where such settlement does not involve the payment of money or currency.

May Deliver Securities.

That any banking institution may deliver to its customers any properly identified documents and securities held by the institution for safekeeping, but no gold or gold certificates may be removed.

That any bank lawfully engaged in the business of acting as trustee, executor, administrator, registrar of stocks and bonds, transfer agent, guardian of estates, assignee, receiver, committee of estates of lunatics, or in any other fiduciary capacity may continue to transact such business in the usual manner; provided that they shall not pay out or permit the withdrawal of coin or currency, or withdraw any trust or fiduciary funds on deposit with any other department of the bank.

Commercial National Hope.

The depositors of the Commercial National Bank, which is in the hands of the Comptroller of Currency, received comfort yesterday from Col. Wade H. Cooper, who said not a "single depositor of the bank shall lose a dollar."

"On the contrary," he said, "the depositors will make some money if they cooperate with me and give me wholehearted support when I announce my plans. I have plans mapped out for the safety and protection of depostors and will make an announcement of them in short time." He also thanked the depositors for their expressions of confidence during the stress through which the bank is passing.

The men demanded entry into the county jail here, and Jailer J. T. Clem finally conducted a committee of three through the building to convince them the suspect was not here. The crowd made open threats of lynching should the suspect be discovered, but left quietly after officers showed the man had been en route to Columbia for an hour.

The suspect was arrested in the Ware Shoals section by Deputy Sheriff Tess Crawford just as a posse arrived.

PHILLIPS AND MOLEY MEET WITH LINDSAY

British-U. S. Aims Likely to Be Reconciled With New Regime, Is View.

(Associated Press.)

For the first time since Roosevelt took office, the British Ambassador visited the State Department yesterday and for more than an hour discussed the debt and economic questions.

Sir Ronald Lindsay conferred with William Phillips, Undersecretary of State, and Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary, both of whom have just entered upon their duties.

Through Secretary Hull the Roosevelt administration has made plain its contention that any nation seeking revision of its debt to the United States must first declare itself on broad tariff policies and the lowering of trade barriers. London has indicated some reluctance to bargaining in return for an adjustment of its debt.

Patient negotiations are expected to reconcile these points of view. Until success can be expected it is understood Britain will not send a delegation here seeking revision of its debt. Accordingly much of the burden will rest on the British Ambassador and on Judge Robert W. Bingham, who is expected soon to be appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The Kentuckian visited the State Department yesterday and talked with Phillips. Hull was busy during the day familiarizing himself with deparement routine and receiving callers, including Senators Trammel and Fletcher, of Florida, and Sheppard, of Texas.

There was unofficial discussion concerning the prospect that if the United States does not remove the present embargo on gold at the end of the week, an important change will take place in the basis for discussion of world economic questions, including war debts.

REPUBLIC'S COLORS OUSTED IN GERMANY

Old Imperial Flag and Nazi's Swastika Mark New Reich Regime.

Berlin, March 7 (A.P.).—The post-war republican colors of Germany ceased to exist today and the constitutional provision concerning them became a dead letter.

The hoisting of the former imperial flag over the Berlin City Hall for the first time since 1918 symbolized what has happened throughout the Reich. Many public buildings controlled by Chancellor Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, such as the official residence of Minister-Without-Portfolio Hermann Goering, displayed the Nazi Swastika emblem. In many localities both the imperial flag and the Swastika were shown, while the colors of the Republic were taboo.

As a result of the Nazi-Nationalist victory in Sunday's Reichstag elections, the job of sweeping out all vestiges of the former regime was carried on all down the line.

The Anhalt provincial diet voted that no member of the Socialist party might hold a civil service job. In Bremen and Hessen the police were taken from the Socialist poli . presidents and turned over to Nationalists. The Prussian ministry of interior barred nude culture societies, against which the Nationalists and Nazis have inveighed.

Through a statement distributed by German agencies, foreign correspondents were warned today that expulsion measures were pending against those "who persistently misrepresented the internal situation."

ZANGARA HEARING IS SET TOMORROW

Assassin Smiles and Bows on Entering Crowded Miami Courtroom.

Miami, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—The assassin, Giuseppe Zangara, bowing and smiling at the curious gaze of a courtroom full of spectators, today was ordered arraigned on Thursday for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, in his wild attempt to slay President Roosevelt.

His attorneys—the same he had when he was sentenced to 80 years' imprisonment on plea of guilty to charges of attempting the life of the President and three bystanders here February 15—declined to say whether Zangara will plead guilty to the murder charge.

The little Italian was brought before Circuit Judge Ely O. Thompson, who set the date for arraignment after appointing defense attorneys and discussing trial plans with them and with State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne.

Under Florida law, the penalty for first-degree murder is death in the electric chair, except in the case of a recommendation for mercy, when the penalty is life imprisonment.

Universal Studio Stops Stars' Pay

Contracts Suspended Until Business Situation Rights Itself.

Hollywood, Calif., March 7 (A.P.).—Universal Studio announced late today that it has temporarily suspended contracts of all its movie players, executives and directors because of the financial situation and that the skeleton personnel left at the studio when production was halted three weeks ago has been reduced from about 75 to 25, mainly executives and writers, who will continue work without pay.

The suspension means that such players as Lew Ayres, Tom Brown, Slim Summerville and Tala Birell will be off salary temporarily under a contract clause protecting the studio in cases of national emergency.

Their pay was not affected by the recent production shut down, but several hundred employes without contracts were laid off without pay at that time. Universal is the only studio to suspend contracts so far.

Church Collections Aid in Making Change

Several Alexandria merchants Monday found themselves running short of change in the regular order of business, and those in the habit of regular attendance at church recalled the attractive array of dimes and nickels that fall into the collection plates Sunday.

Church treasurers were then located and the change exchanged for dollar bills, or ones of even larger denomination to the benefit of the merchants in the conduct of their business.

PARTY LINES DIVIDED OVER CERMAK POST

Several Names Mentioned; Mayor's Funeral Train Arrives Today.

Chicago, March 7 (A.P.).—Politicians went into conferences today to speed selection of a man to head the affairs of the Nation's second city and already party lines were being divided sharply over a successor to Mayor Anton J. Cermak.

Among names mentioned as possible candidates at a special election were:

Democrats—Corporation Counsel William A. Sexton, long standing friend and adviser of Cermak; Col. A. A. Sprague, Edward J. Kelly, Clayton F. Smith, City Comptroller M. S. Szymczak, Ross A. Woodhull, Joseph L. Gill, Judge E. K. Jarecki, Michael L. Igoe, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, P. A. Nash, chairman of the county Democratic organization, and Judge John P. McGoorty.

Republicans—Howard P. Savage, George F. Harding, Thomas O. Wallace, George E. Q. Johnson, Representative Fred A. Britten, Alderman John A. Massen, Prof. Charles E. Merriam, Charles S. Deneen and James A. Kearns.

Meanwhile there was talk of drafting Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, to make the race.

Debt Moratorium Nears in Alabama

Bills Proposed to Delay Mortgage Foreclosure for Six Months.

Montgomery, Ala., March 7 (A.P.).—The Alabama Legislature moved today to protect the rights of creditors and debtors through a bill virtually declaring a six months' moratorium on private debts.

Twin bills were introduced in the Senate and House. The plan provides that State courts may postpone for six months the rendition of judgments and the foreclosure of mortgages and liens if the debtor is unable to pay due to the "financial emergency caused by the banking holiday."

Sponsors of the bill in the Senate said the measure would not be opposed by the Alabama Bankers Association.

REPUBLICANS FAIL TO OUST 4 BOLTERS

Patterson, of Missouri, and Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming.

The four senators it was proposed by Senator Reed to discipline did not attend either party conference. They are Senators George W. Norris, of Nebraska; Hiram Johnson, of California; Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, and Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico. All were given places on committees.

Cutting was placed on the Agriculture, Irrigation and Reclamation, Manufactures, Military Affairs and Public Lands Committees. Norris was placed on the Agriculture, Judiciary, and Patents Committees. Johnson was put on the Commerce, Foreign Relations, Immigration, Irrigation and Reclamation and Territories and Insular Affairs Committees. La Follette was assigned to the committees on Education and Labor, Finance, Foreign Relations, Indian Affairs, Manufactures, and Postoffices.

James J. Davis Removed.

One of the enigmas of the committee assignments was the removal of Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, from the powerful Appropriations Committee. The senator was removed at his own request, causing surprise, inasmuch as that is one committee most senators would like.

A general shifting about of committee assignments was made necessary not only because of the defeat of many Republicans in the last elections, but by the fact that the Democrats are going to have larger representation on the committees and the Republicans less, in line with the comparative Senate strength.

The Democratic Steering Committee is to meet today and it is expected the Democratic committee assignments will be made, thereby just about completing organization of the Senate in readiness for the special session of Congress tomorrow. The House Democrats also are to meet today and probably will organize the Ways and Means, Appropriations, Rules, Accounts and Banking and Currency Committees to be in readiness for the opening session.

London Confident Of Dollar's Value

Roosevelt Is Praised for Vigorous Handling of Situation.

London, March 7 (A.P.).—Confidence in the dollar and the successful outcome of the American banking crisis was emphasized this forenoon by one of the highest banking authorities in Great Britain.

"There is come worry in certain continental quarters, but we do not share it," he said. "The talk of depreciation of the dollar we consider nonsense. The crisis is one of internal banking and has nothing to do with exchange matters.

"We do not consider America off the gold standard and we believe the external phases of the difficulty will be straightened out by the end of the week. President Roosevelt's vigorous manner of approach to the problem likely will have the most beneficial effects."

Nevada Taxpayers Demand New Deal

Legislature Is Called Upon for Reorganization of State Structure.

Carson City, Nev., March 7 (A.P.).—Several hundred Nevada taxpayers visited the State Legislature here today and formally demanded "a complete reorganization of the State structure upon a smaller scale, in order that it harmonize more clearly to the position we occupy in private life."

A half dozen speakers, headed by John Hunter, president of the Nevada Council of County Taxpayers Associations, were heard by the Assembly and Senate meeting in joint session.

Hunter said "our strongest financial institutions have collapsed. Our usual avenues or sources of revenue have been destroyed. We can not convert into cash the products of our soil or of our mines."

Hunter proposed a 21-cent reduction in the State tax rate, advocating heavy reductions in appropriations for nearly every department and complete abolition of others.

GREEN SAYS LABOR TO BACK PRESIDENT

Unionist Warns If Inflation Comes Pay Must Rise to Keep Pace.

(Associated Press.)

The American Federation of Labor promised complete cooperation and support to the President in the present emergency in a statement yesterday which also said that if currency inflation arose, labor would demand increased wages commensurate to the rise in commodity prices.

William Green, president of the federation, said, "No improvement in the distressing conditions could be hoped for or expected if through some form of currency inflation the buying power of labor would remain standardized, while commodity prices increased."

"The purchasing power of the masses of the people must keep pace with whatever increase in commodity prices may occur," he said.

"Labor is willing, anxious and ready to aid in bringing about economic recovery.

"It must do its part in the great emergency through which the Nation is now passing.

"No good purpose will be served, but instead great injury may be done, if at the moment labor would substitute feeling for common sense and ill-advised action for sound judgment.

"In the present grave emergency, labor will respond as it has in every instance by giving to the President its full and complete cooperation and support."

Welfare Leaders Present Program

Reichelderfer Asks More Details on Coordinating Agencies.

A general proposal to coordinate the work of public and private welfare agencies in providing unemployment relief was presented to the District Commissioners yesterday by a group of welfare leaders headed by Dr. Frederic W. Perkins, president of the Council of Social Agencies.

The plan embraced the formation of a coordinating committee to work under the board of public welfare in formulating plans "for the most effective use of the services of public and private agencies."

Upon the suggestion of Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, the welfare workers agreed to return with a more detailed scheme.

Prices for Crude Oil Are Reduced in Texas

Dallas, Tex., March 7 (A.P.).—The Magnolia Petroleum Co. today announced reductions ranging from 4 to 11 cents in prices for crude oil in the Panhandle district of Texas.

In Gray County, the new price for below 36 gravity oil is 30 cents. There is a 2-cent differential up to 40 degrees and above, which was listed at 40 cents.

Bankers Blamed For Credit Crisis

Prof. Rautenstrauch Says Desire for Profit Is Main Cause.

Cambridge, Mass., March 7 (A.P.).—Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch, of Columbia University, tonight blamed bankers, interested in personal profit, for diverting credit from legitimate trade into investments now dormant, due to inadequate purchasing power.

"I fell confident that the President will cause a reorganization of our banking and investment practices, so that the relative claims of capital and labor to the goods produced will be in workable proportions," he said.

"We must rid ourselves of the burden of debt and never let it become fastened on us again."

Quinn Again Given Death in Murders

Former Convict Is Held Guilty of Slaying Sisters in Oklahoma.

Enid, Okla., March 7 (A.P.).—Earl Quinn, accused of slaying Jessie and Ezzie Griffith, Blackwell school teachers, was assessed the death penalty today by a Garfield County jury at his second trial. The former Missouri convict was given the same verdict two years ago by a Kay County jury but won a new trial.

The sisters were shot to death on a highway December 28, 1930. Jessie Griffith had been assaulted.

Quinn was portrayed in State's evidence as roaming the highways, armed and intoxicated, in the early morning hours preceding the murders. He attempted to prove an alibi.

Too Late

San Francisco, March 7 (A.P.).—Twenty minutes after Albert G. Duckwitz, 49, killed himself because, a note said, he could not find work, a friend called to offer him a job. Duckwitz had shot himself after taking poison.

TOSCANINI CHEERED IN FINAL APPEARANCE

Mrs. Roosevelt Among Those Attending Concert; Large Hall Is Packed.

Arturo Toscanini, Italian conductor, received a well-earned ovation yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall, when he conducted the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra at its last concert in Washington. He had something of an ovation when he appeared to conduct the first number, Beethoven's Symphony No. 3, known as the Eroica, but it was at the close of the concert that the audience showed wild enthusiasm and vociferous appreciation.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt was present, having with her in her box Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paris, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Adolph Casper Miller, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, and Mrs. Robert Baker, daughter of the President's secretary, Louis Howe.

The applause to Toscanini was an almost unprecedented testimonial and it was almost unprecedented that an audience which filled every available seat in the huge auditorium should remain until the last note was heard.

The orchestra has been heard here many times, but has never done such beautiful work as they did yesterday.

The overture and Bacchanale from Wagner's "Tannhauser" (Paris version) has been heard in Washington many times, but never as it was given yesterday by Toscanini and the Philharmonic. There was scarcely a flaw anywhere, and in the middle of the gorgeous work, the accompaniment to the theme was given with harps in the "back stage" on the left side, the strains coming through the open door.

The prelude and finale from "Tristan und Isolde" completed a program rarely equaled both in selections and rendition. It but made the regret the deeper that Washington would not have the pleasure of hearing this orchestra "in person" next year.

D. C. Parole Body Policies Explained

Columbia Heights Citizens Back Fire-Prevention Lecture Series.

The functions of the District Parole Board were explained to the Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night by the chairman of the board, Isaac Gans, who told the group that in his opinion "people are not criminals at heart, but more or less victims of environment and early background."

Criminals are being studied by the board from this point of view, Mr. Gans said, and in the same breath he stressed the importance of early training of the right sort at home for young people. Few paroles are being granted at the present time, the speaker said, unless the prisoner has a job to step into.

The association moved that school children be given ten-minute talks each year on fire prevention. This motion was passed after Capt. H. A. Chapman, of the Fire Department, illustrated the proper procedure in turning in a fire alarm. A motion asking a reduction in taxes in real property was also passed.

Oklahoma Mortgage Moratorium Now Law

Oklahoma City, March 7 (A.P.).—A two-year moratorium on Oklahoma mortgage foreclosures became law today when Gov. W. H. Murray affixed his signature to the bill.

SWANSON DECLARES FOR STRONGER NAVY

possible. Regarding ship construction the Secretary said a proposal had been made at Geneva for other nations to cease building and permit the United States to build up to ratio.

"Whether we shall get the ratio by increase or a decrease is a question for the State Department," he explained.

As to the Navy forces in the Pacific, Secretary Swanson was of the opinion that the United States fleet would probably remain on the West Coast "until there was a change" in the Far Eastern situation.

"I think we should keep up a fleet adequate to protect our commerce and guard our rights and territory," said the Virginian, "and that the fleet should go where needed."

Recent calculations of the Navy were that the United States by its present status of the building program would be 135 ships, or 316,530 tons under treaty strength at end of 1936 when the London pact expires. By that date, it was estimated both Great Britain and Japan would possess navies of full quota strength.

The Government's last construction program was approved by Congress in February, 1929, just prior to inauguration of former President Hoover. It authorized construction of an airplane carrier and sixteen cruisers, which are now being completed. Two years later Congress authorized modernization of three old battleships, the Idaho, the New Mexico and the Mississippi. Work is progressing on two of these ships, but the Idaho is now in dry dock waiting for more money, which must be appropriated by the next Congress to make her ready for active duty.

Heiress Wed

Caroline Crittenden Elopes With Salesman to West Virginia.

Pittsburgh, March 7 (A.P.).—Announcement of the marriage of Caroline Jackson Crittenden, former wife of an Arizona cowboy, to W. W. Goldsborough, jr., 24, was made today.

Parents said the young couple, both residents of Pittsburgh, eloped yesterday and was married in New Cumberland, W. Va.

Miss Crittenden, prominent society woman, was married to Paul Showalter, 24, Arizona riding instructor and cowboy, last March.

They were divorced a short time later, Showalter contending that his wife's wealth humiliated him and that her love died three days after they were married in Tucson, March 13.

The first marriage took place a few months after the young heiress' engagement to Joseph K. Morford, University of Virginia law student, was revealed. The engagement was broken shortly after it was announced.

Miss Crittenden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Crittenden.

Goldsborough is a salesman.

Indorsement of George W. Offutt, jr., former president of the Washington Board of Trade, as Commissioner of the District in charge of the Police and Fire Departments, to succeed Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, was voted yesterday by the board of directors of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Motion for indorsement was made by Col. Robert N. Harper. Later in the day heads of trade organizations and other leading citizens met to consider plans for advancing the campaign for Mr. Offutt's appointment.

The Chamber of Commerce board approved the report on advance planning of public works for the District as recommended by the Federal Employment Stabilization Board. Thomas P. Dern May Be Requested to Return Soldiers to Arizona Posts.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 7 (A.P.).—Senator J. A. Harrison introduced a memorial in the State Senate today asking Secretary of War Dern to station troops at Nogales and Douglas, Ariz.

United States Army troops were transferred from Camp Steven D. Little, Nogales, and Camp Harry J. Jones, Douglas, to Fort Huachuca several months ago on orders from the War Department.

The memorial asserts the United States and the State of Arizona are "on the friendliest of terms with the Republic of Mexico * * * nevertheless, disquieting disturbances along the border can occur at any time and have often occurred and it is considered important to the protection of life and property that these border troop posts at Douglas and Nogales be occupied by troops."

Martial Law Declared In Peiping and Tientsin

Peiping, China, March 7 (U.P.).—Martial law went into effect in both Peiping and Tientsin tonight.

Justice

One Jury Clears Man and Another Convicts Him on Same Evidence.

Memphis, Tenn., March 7 (A.P.).—The mysteries of the law are an insoluble puzzle to Jim Moore, Negro baseball player.

Last September Moore resorted to violence in settling an argument with another Negro player. He was indicted for assault to murder with a pistol, and for pistol carrying.

Both cases came up today, that for assault first. The jury heard the evidence and retired. To try the pistol carrying charge, a second jury was brought into the same courtroom and heard the same witness testify to the same facts. It retired.

Then the first jury came back—with a conviction and a sentence of not more than five years imprisonment. On the heels of the first, the second jury returned. It acquitted Moore, reporting it found no evidence that he carried the pistol.

PLASTIRAS RESIGNS BRIEF DICTATORSHIP

Athens, March 7 (A.P.).—Gen. Nicholas Plastiras and his associates who effected a coup d' etat yesterday, setting up a temporary military government, were ordered arrested today by Gen. Othonaios, the new premier of the nation.

The purpose of Gen. Plastiras was to make it possible for the Royalist leader, former Premier Tsaldaris, to set up a government. Tsaldaris was the victor in Sunday's general elections.

Declaring his objective had been achieved, Gen. Plastiras resigned the temporary dictatorship today and subsequently his arrest was ordered. Disturbances in connection with the coup d' etat resulted in the killing of one person and the wounding of 23.

Gen. Othonaios announced his only purpose was to restore order and explained that he expected to remain in the premiership a short time.

Censorship and martial law were abolished.

John Underwood, Lake County prosecuting attorney, said he had information that the child was well and unharmed and that she would be returned soon to Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Smith reported that the baby was taken by a swarthy man, who called at the Smith farm near Rensselaer, ostensibly for the purpose of purchasing eggs.

Those under arrest were Mrs. Bessie Tripp, paternal grandmother of the missing child; Mr. and Mrs. August Johnson, uncle and aunt of the baby; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Lahlen. All are residents of Gary, except Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, who live at Hebron.

$500 and $1,000 Bills Used to Pay Taxes

An indication that many Washingtonians are delving into their hoarded savings as a result of the bank moratorium was seen yesterday in a report by Tax Collector Chatham Towers that his office had received an unusual number of $500 and $1,000 bills in tax payments recently.

Although the tax collector has agreed to accept checks as conditional payment without issuing receipts until the checks clear, only a minimum number of checks are being received, Mr. Towers said.

Fairfax Chamber Urges Cut in County Salaries

As a means of reducing the county budget, the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce last night went on record as favoring a reduction of all salaries to the minimum fixed by the State law, and also the abolishment of unnecessary offices.

It was specifically recommended that a study be made as to the possibility of abolishing the office of county purchasing agent, in case it should be found that his duties can be performed by other county officers.

Opposition to reduction in salaries of teachers and school executives is expressed in a resolution adopted by the Glen Echo-Cabin John Park Parent-Teacher Association, which was received by the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday.

A similar resolution was adopted Monday night by the Cabin John Park Citizens Association.

The county commissioners gave permission to the Annapolis-Chesapeake Bay Power Co. to extend its power lines along the Good Hope road near Spencerville, Md.

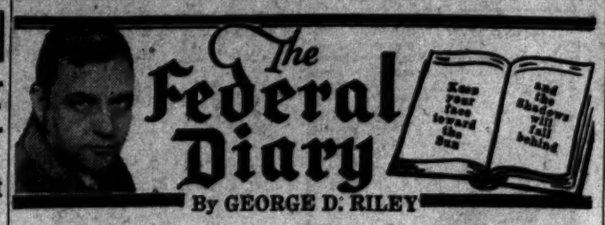
The Federal Diary



By GEORGE D. RILEY

IN spite of furlough deduction of Government salaries there is not a day passes that Government clerks are not called upon to assist some charity. The plea is never ignored as long as a thin dime remains in the pocketbook of these workers.

This, in spite of the fact that most clerks are supporting families or those less fortunate who are kin to them.

Recently, after a more than usual run of supplications, Mrs. Mildred Delaplane Stetson, a vivacious and pretty widow in the Department of Justice, whose generosity is traditional although she is rearing a son, placed the usual slit-covered box on the receiving desk, inscribed "Urn for M. D. S.'s Ashes."

In a few minutes a most official envelope was jammed into the opening of the box. Mrs. Stetson and several of the more curious gathered to inspect the offering. Upon opening the envelope the following verse was found:

TO M. D. S.

A woman stood at the Golden Gate
And cried, "Saint Peter, let me in!"
But Peter quothe, as he dangled his keys,
"What deed hath cleansed thy sin?"

The woman paused and pleaded low
"Oh nothing that I have done—
But go and whisper in Mary's ear
That I have borne a son."

"Oh enter, enter!" the old saint cried;
And the Hosts of God drew near
As Mary herself arose and said,
"All mothers are welcome here."

"The pain and tears of each workaday
Are stars in thy crown of gold.
The mother who toils to rear her child
Finds rest in the Father's fold."

—Estelle Manning-Brewer Thompson, Department of Justice.

PEOPLE who think American business men have lost interest in overseas trade should drop in one of these mornings and watch Editor Griffith Evans, Commerce Department's weekly foreign trade survey, Commerce Reports, counting checks. During the past three days, Evans says, approximately 75 new subscriptions have been received, and it is probable the number will exceed 200 by the end of the week. This is striking evidence, he points out, that despite depression, depreciated foreign currency and other factors adverse to export business, United States manufacturers have no present intention of retiring from foreign trade.

Due to the fact that France, Germany and Japan are not yet ready to announce the results secured by their respective laboratories, a final conference has been deferred until January, 1935, when the committee will compare values submitted, and by taking the most accurate, have the power to set this standard for electrical units everywhere.

This international advisory committee on electrical measurements is an outcome of a treaty signed in 1923.

"Our national officers, assisted by three trained legislative agents, were in constant touch with the Congressional situation," said Matilda Lindsay, national organizer, relating the course of the economy act, at the meeting last night of Employes Union No. 261, N. F. F. E. "Effect of their efforts on behalf of Government personnel could be noted in the various debates. No one can so well speak for Federal employes as their own chosen representatives."

John D. Cloud, also national organizer, said there is keen interest in the Federation's work and that the feeling prevails that it has shown again the quality of its leadership.

Snuff Said

One Out of Five in Nation Use It, Expert Says as Output Soars.

(Associated Press.)

Consumption of snuff has increased sharply and it is estimated that one person in every five in the United States uses it, B. D. Hill, chief of the Commerce Department's tobacco division, said yesterday.

Domestic consumption of snuff in 1932 amounted to 36,412,000 pounds, as compared with 3,972,000 pounds in 1880, he reported. Exports in 1932 amounted to 15,431 pounds, going chiefly to Barbados, Panama, China, Japan and Canada.

"It is estimated in some circles that about 25,000,000 persons in the United States are using snuff, most of whom chew it," Hill said.

Indian Wampum Used For Connecticut Fees

Windsor, Conn., March 7 (A.P.).—Wampum of Indian days is acceptable to Town Clerk Leslie H. Hayes in payment for recording deeds during the present emergency.

He is willing to take arrow heads and Indian relics. He has a large collection. He can take wampum, as the fees for recording deeds belong to him.

Killer Grins

And Laughs as He Calmly Murders Cab Driver After Ride.

New York, March 7 (A.P.).—A man in a blue overcoat, who wore spats and carried a cane, flagged the taxicab of Santo Cari, 31, in Manhattan early today.

"Take me to Brooklyn," he said with a chuckle.

Throughout the trip he kept chuckling to himself and asking Cari questions about his family, his home life, his job.

On a dark Brooklyn street he ordered the driver to stop, commented that it had been a "nice ride," and then poked a revolver in the driver's face.

"Take my money, but don't shoot," Cari shouted.

"I don't want your money; I'm going to kill you," answered the man in a blue overcoat.

He ordered Cari into a dark hallway, gave his queer laugh again, fired four bullets, then fled.

Before Cari died he told police he had never seen the man before; that he had no enemies, and that the motive for the shooting was a mystery to him.

Police put it down as a "thrill" killing while they hunted the man with the queer laugh.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX INSPECTION DUE

Capital Homes and Stores to Be Visited to Check 1934 Returns.

Inspectors from the District tax assessor's office will begin their annual visits to Washington residences and stores this week to check on personal property in anticipation of the next fiscal year's taxes, according to announcement yesterday by Deputy Tax Assessor Charles A. Russell.

Although Washingtonians are not required, to file returns on tangible and intangible personal property before July, District inspectors gather the data ahead of time in order to check it against the returns or to enable the assessor's office to make estimates in case no returns are filed.

"Persons being visited by the inspectors will not only protect their own rights by giving the inspectors the information asked for, but will help any persons who should file personal tax returns to escape the penalties for delinquencies," Mr. Russell stated.

An exemption of $1,000 on household furnishings and $500 in savings account is allowed under the law. Reminders to make returns will be mailed to all persons whose names appear on the assessor's records in June.

Assessor William P. Richards announced yesterday that so far only 50 property holders had taken advantage of the recently enacted quarterly-payment law to escape paying the remainder of 1933 taxes this month.

Under the new law persons may make application to pay the March payment either entirely in April or half in April and half in June.

ARGUMENTS CLOSE TODAY IN RUM CASE

Only Three of Five Counts Against Plummer Will Go Before Jury.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., March 7.—Argument will be concluded tomorrow in the case of William Plummer and Ben Tyler, Negro, on trial before Judge W. Calvin Chesnut and a jury in the United States District Court in connection with the hijacking of a load of liquor being convoyed by dry investigators last September.

Judge Chesnut adjourned court immediately after the argument delivered for the Government by Wilfred T. McQuaid, assistant United States district attorney. The Government also is represented by Simon E. Sobeloff, United States district attorney, and Cornelius Munday, another assistant.

Prior to Mr. McQuaid's argument, Judge Chesnut ruled that the case should go to the jury as to Plummer on three counts—assault with a deadly weapon, and transportation and possession of liquor. Counts in the indictment charging him with rescue and attempt to rescue seized property will not go to the jury.

Judge Chesnut said he felt there was some doubt as to whether the statute under which the indictment was drawn covered the offense which Plummer is alleged to have committed in connection with the rescue, so Mr. Sobeloff consented to the dropping of these counts.

Judge Chesnut also took from the jury's consideration all charges against Tyler, who was named in the same indictment, except the one of transportation. Testimony was produced purporting to show that Plummer was the leader of the hijacking gang, which held up five officers and a mechanic in Calvert County while they were bringing 153 cases of seized liquor to Baltimore.

Holiday Hurts Land Tax Sales.

Because of the bank holiday, only about 1 per cent of the $2,200 parcels of land sold for taxes in Prince Georges County were bought in by private bidders at the sales on Monday. The county was forced to buy in the balance.

Somerset, Md., Seeks Permission to Borrow

Permission to borrow money on certificates of indebtedness for the town of Somerset, Md., is contained in a bill to be presented to the State Legislature. The town council would have power to borrow not to exceed 1 per cent of the town's assessed valuation.

The certificates would be retired by inclusion in the tax levy of a sum sufficient to retire one-third of the certificates annually, the added tax rate to be kept within the $1 per $100 limit now provided for in the charter. The town clerk, John Holland, has been directed by the council to address letters to taxpayers, informing them that no certificates would be issued until taxpayers first have an opportunity to express themselves on the need for such loans.

Hyattsville Referendum Proposed in Fire Row

A proposal that the Hyattsville fire department fight, now pending in the courts, be settled in a general referendum at the town election in May has been made by a committee of citizens appointed to suggest ways of reducing the town tax rate.

The committee also discussed economies by eliminating all-night street lighting, reduction of library expense, reduction of town assessment expense through use of the county assessment and by getting a larger share of the $1,500 contributed by the counties to the fire departments.

The Meanderer

Writes Only of Bright Spots, Gay Gowns, Plaid Shirts, Gaudy Beer Mugs and Wild Cherry Cake.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Spots, splashes and splotches of red, blue and yellow, all on one gown—a silken gown just unpacked in a glamorous dress salon discriminating women well know—clamor to lead this column, which admits only bright colors today. Poppies, buttercups, cornflowers and daisies are not content to stay printed in the silken gown's surface. They spring out, are captured by needle and thread fast to the abbreviated, frivolous sleeves of the gown. Ask to see these gay gowns, wear them to parties this week and agree with the Meanderer that such a costume is an antidote indeed for dull weather or any other gray circumstances.

Plaid shirts with matching plaid ties should give gentlemen a colorful antidote for dull days. The ties are as launderable as are the shirts. A salesman in a big, reliable department store on Seventh street tells the Meanderer that women shoppers are purchasing the plaid shirts to make more decorative the masculine wardrobes of their families. The plaid shirts with matching ties cost just $1.95.

Sturdy beer mugs of glass—two red ones, two white ones and two blue mugs—cost only $1 for the six in the china and glassware department of a store off E street on Seventh. These round, cheerful objects have just arrived in time for the predicted "happy days."

Clear blue, amber, amethyst, green, rose and crystal stemware or tumblers make cocktail sets of six pieces for $1.95 in the shop selling the beer mugs. The varied colors in each set—with no two glasses of the same color—prevent confusion in glasses when serving the "second round." This glassware is of a nationally advertised make.

Brilliant blue, gracefully designed, is a cordial set the Meanderer coveted. The pretty blue bottle and six long-stemmed glasses make the set for $1.25, grouped near the cocktail and beer sets.

Bright blue, too, is the ivy-filled vase known as the "happiness" jug. The ivy, jug and all cost just 35 cents.

Jolly red and green [illegible] make jumper frock and cap for the schoolgirl in the grades. A puff-sleeve blouse in sprigged dimity completes the modish little ensemble, selling as a three-piece costume for $2.95. The reliable Seventh street department store offering plaid shirts for father sponsors this jumper suit for daughter.

Wild cherry icing with its eligible color gives angel cake entry at this point. Two bakeries in the heart of the shopping district are selling these red-topped angel cakes for 21 cents, today only.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

AN IMMUTABLE LAW.

THE principle of the squeeze in bridge is based on the simple proposition that one body can not be in two places at the same time. Thus a player with two points of attack to defend, but with forces adequate to defend only one, may be compelled to see his defenses crumble at all points through the inexorable working of superior forces.

An appreciation and application of this principle permitted Mr. Thomas H. O'Neil, a member of the staff of the Associated Press, to brilliantly fulfill a grand slam contract in a recent rubber game at the Deschapelles Club in New York City. Mr. O'Neil was one of those who reported my 150-rubber match with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz, something over a year ago. His interest in bridge has always been keen, but his skill as a player perhaps has not been adequately recognized—maybe because of that anonymity with which a great news-gathering organization cloaks its faithful servants.

The hand which gave Mr. O'Neil the opportunity to make apparently one more trick than was in the cards was the following:

East, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K Q 10 8 3 ♡ Q J 8 2 ◇ 7 6 4 ♣ 9
♠ A 9 5 4 ♡ 10 9 6 4 ◇ 8 2 ♣ Q J 10	N W E S	♠ J ♡ A K 5 ◇ A K 9 ♣ A K 8 7 6 2
	♠ 7 6 2 ♡ 7 3 ◇ Q J 10 5 3 ♣ 5 4 3

Mr. T. O'Neil

The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
3♣	Pass	2NT(1)	Pass
3♠(2)	Pass	4♣(3)	Pass
6♣	Pass	7♠(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1. West's choice of a response is close. After all, the hand does hold considerable support for a club bid, but West decides to err on the side of conservatism rather than boldness. An alternative bid would be three clubs.

2. Correctly showing the rehid strength of the club suit.

3. West now gives a raise in clubs.

4. Overoptimistic, no doubt, but West feels sure that Mr. O'Neil holds three Aces and there is a possible ruffing value in the doubleton in the diamond suit. He knows, too, that Mr. O'Neil holds a long trump suit, which may permit the making of the contract through a squeeze.

The play was quite interesting. South naturally opened the diamond Queen. Of course, against a spade opening the squeeze could not have operated, as it would have removed a vital card of entry from the Dummy. Mr. O'Neil drew one round of trumps, then led his second high diamond and ruffed the losing diamond in the Dummy, and then continued to lead out all the remaining trumps. It was obvious, of course, that unless North was required to protect both the heart and spade suits, the contract could not be made. This line of play assumed that North held both the King-Queen of spades and the Queen-Knave of hearts, with length in both suits. After eight tricks had been played, the situation was as follows:

	♠ K Q ♡ Q J 8 ◇ — ♣ —
♠ A 9 ♡ 10 9 4 ◇ — ♣ —	N W E S	♠ J ♡ A K 5 ◇ — ♣ 2
	♠ 7 6 ♡ 7 2 ◇ J ♣ —

South's play was immaterial when the last trump was led. As a matter of fact, he discarded the diamond. A heart was played from Dummy, but North could not defend further. Hoping that his partner held a stopper in spades, he discarded the spade Queen, but it was of no avail. The Ace and King of hearts were cashed, and the last two tricks taken with the Ace-9 of spades in Dummy. Mr. O'Neil, by very accurate play, had redeemed his partner's overbid.

It's a Maslon!

—and it's smart for a number of reasons! It belongs in that exceedingly useful and becoming class of formal silk suits. The fitted jacket has wide cuffs of almost-black grey fox, the frock beneath is very simple, with a detachable yoke and Ascot tie of forsythia yellow shirred net.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

TINY hats of brightly colored straw! And with flowers, too—if you please. That is, if you please—it's not compulsory!

I can wax lyrical over these hats because they are cunning—gay and saucy, and who says you have to perch them over your eyebrows if you don't want to? I spent the whole of last Sunday making over my hats—hundreds of 'em, it seemed to me before I finished—and most of the day was spent deciding that the new way of wearing the new hats was not for me. Anyone with a round face or face inclined to be fleshy, especially around the jaws and extra chin, as I am—will find that cutting off the white expanse of the forehead with the hat is not a clever thing to do. So what? Well, open up on the forehead, and while not exactly defying the new mode—wear more forehead and less hat if you want to.

Well, as I was saying, this spring will see an epidemic of tiny straw hats, I do think—in bright colors, too—saved from banality by their very smallness. And when you want the hat to be very dressy, indulge in a veil of sorts. Then flowers, fruits, feathers—all make their bow to the mode—oh, I almost forgot ribbons, which are certainly here to stay! But don't go further than a tiny bit of anything in the way of trimming, unless it be an allover flat flowered hat, or an allover flat feathered one.

The garland of flowers or feathers, too, with just tulle matching the hair for the top, is chic. One for a dressy evening affair matching the hair with tulle in a cape shape, bordered with flat silver lah-may flowers, had a cut ruffle-veil effect that fell just to the bridge of the nose—and being three layers of tulle, was most mysteriously intriguing and flattering to the lady (with a few eye wrinkles) who wore it!

There is absolutely no more subtle yet more definite index of a woman's true refinement or lack of it than the handkerchief she carries. And do you know that the most exquisite and individual handkerchiefs are the ones that you can make yourself? If you have but one handkerchief to your name—and it will be no one's fault but your own—let that one be a work of art and an indication of your taste! But with this week's illustrated leaflet to help you—you can have a lovely handkerchief for every frock—all in your spare finger time, too—and from the littlest bits of left-over scraps. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet, and see for yourself. All new and lovely designs, some that you never even thought of, too, I'll bet.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

IF you are a busy woman, and who isn't these days, harken to Frances Dee's big party-dressing schedule:

Reaching home late from the studio with a dinner party looming for the evening, Miss Dee follows a carefully worked-out plan that cares for the details of complexion, hair and make-up in record time.

"Here's how I do it," advises Miss Dee. Perhaps you have seen her in "King of the Jungle," featuring Buster Crabbe, world-famous swimming champion. "My hair comes first. No matter how freshly waved, all hair requires renovation for an evening party. With a nongreasy hair tonic, I moisten the waves and curls of my hair and press the waves deeper and pin the curls flat. Then I tie a piece of white cloth about my hair to keep it in place while drying. This item requires but ten minutes.

"The next step is cleansing the face thoroughly with cold cream and applying a soft nourishing cream, which is left on during the warm bath and cold shower. This process consumes another ten minutes. After the bath, off comes the cold cream followed by a mild astringent and a quick dash of ice over face and eyelids.

"The intricate matter of make-up comes next and can not be hurried. Pat and blend in a good powder base, leaving no greasy surplus, or if your skin is quite oily, use a lotion powder. With clouds of powder, start at the base of the neck and bring the puff upward to the forehead, then take up excess powder working down. The lips are next, using more lip salve and a deeper shade than is required for daytime wear. Eyes then get the attention, including eyeshadow, mascara and brow pencil. Cheek rouge, if you use it, should be the salve type for evening lights. Fifteen minutes have been annihilated getting the make-up set, and time is getting short.

"Off comes the white cloth about the hair, which is now dry. Because my hair was combed and pressed into place at the beginning of my dressing it requires but five minutes of pinning and adjustment at this stage.

"On goes my frock and if the neckline is tight, I retie the cloth about my hair to guard it against disarrangement. Everything is ready, and only 40 minutes required for the job, and I feel as well groomed as I do when I take a full two hours for my toilette."

Harris Memorial Adopted.

A resolution of regret on the death of the late Albert Harris, municipal architect, was adopted at the March meeting of the District Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

What Today Means

"PISCES."

IF MARCH 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 7:45 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 5:45 p. m. to 6:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 8:45 p. m.

Born on March 8, the child will not be one to accept without questioning the advice and opinion of elders, including his parents. You will find him a reasoning little one, interested in everything and curious as to the "whys and wherefores" of all that comes to his attention. You must always talk to him, not down to him.

If March 8 is the date of your birth, you quite likely are possessed of talents, that may lead you along scientific or literary lines. You find it difficult to set up a goal in life which you will seek to attain, for you see things too clearly not to realize the futility of any purely material achievement. You are among those very rare people who seem able to look beyond the individual, or the group, and see the universe as a whole. Your prime interest is in life, and you constantly strive to better yourself, to grow spiritually, in order to learn more if possible of its seeming mysteries.

Successful people born on March 8:

Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, philanthropist.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, jurist.

Albert E. Sterner, artist.

Homer C. Davenport, cartoonist.

W. Bramwell Booth, Salvation Army general.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DEPRESSION AND HEALTH.

THE health of the country is improving steadily. The interruption of good times which began in 1929 and has continued since has not sufficed to interrupt the progress. The general trend which was established many years ago continues to operate and has not been materially bent in either direction by the change in economic conditions of the last few years. It is too well established and stands on a foundation of public intelligence that is too broad to be easily modified.

In certain fields there has been a tendency toward an increase in the rate of sickness rates, but this has been more than offset by a decrease in the birth rate. While the death rate does not respond quickly to change in the economic status, the birth rate does. The very great drop in the birth rate since 1929 means that there have been fewer babies and fewer children to get sick, and this has indirectly operated to reduce the death rate.

In the field of mortality, effect lags behind cause. In certain diseases the lag is trifling. For instance, a man gets drunk and falls in the river today. He has pneumonia tomorrow, and the funeral is set for Saturday.

However, most diseases are of a different basis. We are exposed to the causes of consumption. We do not develop the disease for several years, maybe not for 10 years. Heart disease lags behind rheumatism even more than 10 years.

Should hard times continue and privation become worse than it now is, we will pay the penalty in increased death rates, increase in certain diseases, and the genesis of new diseases just as surely as they did in Roumania and in Germany during the World War.

Malone Plans Air Test For Fliers at Langley

The readiness with which Air Corps units stationed at Langley Field, Va., are prepared to perform missions that might be assigned to them in a major emergency will be tested today by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, as a part of his administrative and tactical inspection of that post.

Advance instruction for the inspection exercises call for the departure of the entire group from Langley Field with full equipment, accompanied by transport planes, prepared to establish an advanced airdome and to carry out bombing and gunnery missions under a general tactical situation.

CONGRESS, DON'T RECESS.

President Roosevelt did not intend to call the extra session of Congress this week. Democratic leaders expected to take a few weeks for completion of their legislative program before the opening of a new session. But the banking crisis forced immediate action. Now they are considering a recess of several weeks as soon as the emergency banking legislation can be passed.

The advisability of such delay is open to question. Some time may be required to formulate all of the administration's program, but Congress has before it considerable work that is not an integral part of the "new deal." There is, for example, the District appropriations bill which failed of enactment in the "lame duck" session. This measure must be passed before June 30, or the District would be left without funds. It would be extremely unwise to postpone an urgent measure of this kind in the hope that the entire Democratic program might be enacted before the end of the fiscal year. Congress will have a good opportunity to pass the District bill in the interval following the emergency banking legislation.

Consideration must be given also to the independent offices supply bill vetoed by former President Hoover. Vast economies, which are essential to balance the budget, can be effected by revising this measure. The elimination of doles to veterans who suffered no injury in the war would be a powerful factor in the restoration of confidence. There is no reason for delay in attacking this problem, which must be met before the budget can be balanced. If Congress intends to formulate a new fiscal policy before the next fiscal year begins, every day will be precious. Although it is not so urgent as the banking crisis, the wide discrepancy between expenditures and revenue is also an emergency. It is intimately connected with the restoration of confidence in the banks and the monetary system.

Psychological factors are also important. The country is in a mood for leadership. It wants action, and fears delay and uncertainty more than anything else. If Congress should recess for several weeks, the advantage which has been gained by President Roosevelt's bold action might be lost. It is not enough for Congress to bridge over the emergency with clearing house certificates. A broad basis for new confidence is needed. The people want to know that Congress is going to act with dispatch in cutting down expenditures, in balancing the budget and putting the banks on a solid foundation. When such assurance can be given present difficulties will disappear. Congress ought not to indulge, however, in the belief that it can revive confidence and stimulate business by taking a recess.

If the program which Mr. Roosevelt is preparing to lay before Congress could be adopted with cooperation and dispatch, the effect upon the country would be electrifying. The Democratic party should think twice before risking the loss of the momentum which it has already acquired.

WILL R. WOOD.

On the eve of his departure for a long-deferred holiday, former Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana died in New York yesterday. His death is directly attributable to overwork as a legislator.

For many years Representative Wood was chairman of the House committee on appropriations. In that capacity he was expected to exercise general supervision over all proposals for disbursement of Government money. He not only met this expectation, but went far beyond his supervisory duties by personally examining conditions in the departments, bureaus, and independent offices. During the year practically every important functionary appeared before Chairman Wood's committee and was individually interrogated by him. Hundreds of these officials were required to furnish sound reasons for proposed appropriations. If they could not satisfy Mr. Wood their proposals met with his strong opposition, and so great was the confidence of the House in his judgment that his counsel usually prevailed.

Hundreds of millions of dollars that would have been squandered were saved to the Treasury by Will R. Wood. At the same time, he grasped the immensity of Government operations and approved of enormous outlays without hesitation so long as they were justified.

The incessant labor involved in standing guard over the national purse wore down Mr. Wood's strength. His defeat in November did not indicate public appreciation of his devotion to public duty, but he was a philosopher and perhaps consoled himself with the reflection that republics are not as ungrateful as they are uninformed. At any rate, Mr. Wood looked forward to a pleasant voyage of recuperation, and thousans of friends deplore his sudden death.

THE SENATE CAN ACT.

For the first time in several years a majority of the Senate is organized to do business instead of talking about it. By a vote of 50 to 3 Senate Democrats adopted a plan for forcing emergency measures through the Senate by the caucus procedure. When the extra session opens tomorrow this "greatest deliberative body in the world" may be expected to operate promptly.

Democratic leaders in the Senate had enough of filibustering and intraparty rows during the "lame duck" session. A few wild men monopolized the time and prevented action on urgent measures. The Senate floundered about as helplessly as a ship without a rudder in a storm. The leaders will take no chance on a similar performance in the extra session, when vital measures for relief of the banking situation must be considered. By almost unanimous action they have tied the hands of the radicals and made ready to work with unprecedented efficiency.

The caucus resolution is drastic. Senator Robinson, who becomes majority leader, is authorized to call Democratic senators together at any time for consideration of measures recommended by the President. All Democratic members of the Senate will be bound by a majority vote of the caucus. Senators will be excused from supporting the majority action only if they express to the caucus conscientious objections, or if that action violates campaign pledges they have made. Two-thirds of the Democrats in the Senate are sufficient to constitute a caucus.

Apparently the Senate will be a very different body from that which has held forth at the north end of the Capitol for the last four years. President Roosevelt will have large Democratic majorities to support him in both the House and the Senate, and the wild men will be effectively squelched. In spite of the difficulties of the hour, President Roosevelt has one of the finest opportunities for constructive action that has ever been open to any President.

A FEARLESS VETERAN.

Last year the next Director of the Budget, Representative Lewis W. Douglas, made a speech in Congress on the question of veteran benefits that is one of the unique contributions on this subject. Himself a veteran of the World War with an enviable record oversea, he has been frankly outspoken in opposition to the excessive growth of benefits paid to service men who suffered no injury or disease as a result of their enlistment. It was in May of last year, after detailing the current expenditures of the Veterans' Bureau, that Mr. Douglas said:

> Whereas there are today more than 1,000,000 ex-service men receiving benefits from the United States Government it is estimated that number will exceed 1,400,000 ten years from now. Moreover during the next decade it is estimated that $11,870,000,000 will be paid to veterans. In other words, ten years hence the United States will have paid to veterans of the World War approximately $17,000,000,000. I submit that this is an appalling figure; we must set our minds and our hearts to the task of modifying existing statutes. * * * I say to you that this thing must stop.

As a budget trimmer Mr. Douglas will doubtless be just as fearless a champion of curtailment of unjust expenditures wherever he finds them. In closing his famous speech he did not limit his remarks to unwarranted veteran demands, but said that as long as he was a member of the House he would "oppose every organized minority that attempts to impose on the United States a burden which can not be justified and which the United States can not and should not carry." If this spirit can be translated into action by the next Congress it will go far toward achieving that all-important goal of a balanced budget.

THE POCKET VETO.

Some enthusiasts are urging President Roosevelt to sign the Smith bill for the stabilization of cotton prices. This measure was passed at the eleventh hour by the "lame duck" Congress and was accorded a pocket veto by President Hoover. The suggestion that President Roosevelt attempt to give it validity raises a novel question. The Constitution provides:

> If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

It is argued that, since a new Congress will be in session before the 10 days allotted to the President to sign a bill has expired, the pocket veto does not become effective. If that argument is valid, the bill carrying $950,000,000 for veterans' payments, which Mr. Hoover also refused to sign, is also alive, and will require a veto by President Roosevelt to prevent it from becoming law. If the argument in favor of the Smith bill has any merit, all measures passed by Congress and left unsigned by Mr. Hoover will become laws unless vetoed by the new President.

Why, then, do the advocates of the Smith cotton bill plead for a signature? If they really intend to test this novel view in the courts, they should await expiration of ten days and then claim that the Smith bill is law. The real question at issue would be whether unfinished legislation dies with the Congress that has expired. If it does not, for the reason that another Congress has met within ten days, then bills passed but unsigned will become laws.

It is a well known rule in American legislative practice, however, that all pending legislation dies with the expiration of a Congress. Bills that failed of enactment in the Seventy-second Congress must be reintroduced and reconsidered by the new Congress. The supposition that a measure pocket-vetoed by the President can be revived simply by convening a new Congress within 10 days is far-fetched, indeed.

The cotton interests are arguing that their measure should become law because a new Congress is meeting, and yet they do not propose that the new Congress shall have an opportunity to examine or pass upon it.

PROFESSORS IN POLITICS.

The prominent part that college professors played in the last campaign, particularly the group headed by Dr. Raymond C. Moley, professor of public law at Columbia University, who has been closely associated with the President-elect ever since his nomination, has attracted much attention as a new element to be intimately connected with practical politics. At a meeting of Columbia graduates Dr. Moley spoke frankly of his experience as economic adviser to the incoming President. He believes that politicians and professors are being drawn together into closer relationship in solving governmental problems than ever before. In his new position as Assistant Secretary of State he will doubtless continue close relations with the President and be in a position to advance his own ideas of economic and international questions.

Dr. Moley disclosed that his recent experience outside the confines of academic walls had been an illuminating one. The professor explained that the so-called "brain trust" had worked directly with the Democratic candidate rather than with the campaign committee. However, he said, the professors like the politicians and the politicians like the professors, and he was frank to acknowledge that he had "learned more, not only of practice, but of theory, from Jim Farley and Louis Howe than from many of my books." By engaging in public service Dr. Moley found that the professor "came to sympathize with and appreciate fully the intelligence that the harassed public official exercises when meeting his problem; we have found that wisdom lives even when it does not wear the scholastic gowns of wisdom."

Whether Dr. Moley can maintain his ideal of the position that his profession should occupy is a question. No matter how harmoniously the professors may have worked with the politicians during the campaign, their more recent efforts to inculcate economic and financial wisdom among the solons of Capitol Hill have not been quite so felicitous. Members of Congress often seek advice, but they are very chary of that which is thrust upon them, particularly if it comes second-hand. Their position demands contacts with principals. There may be a place for the academic adviser in the American form of government, but he will find that his forte is not in taking ready-made measures to Congress or telling members what must be done in either national or international affairs.

This emergency demonstrates that the backbone of the country is the ordinary everyday business man, whose rule is "business as usual."

If scrip will buy gas, the American people will continue to run around in joyous and ever-widening circles.

Congressmen who had planned to take long trips on free Government transports are now in a transport of disgust.

Now you realize that the war debts are mere chickenfeed.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

With Oriental affairs making the first page regularly, the inland American may be pardoned if he wonders sometimes if another world war is incubating. And if he dismisses this as a preposterous idea, with all the nations of the world in coincidence with the formulae of Mr. Stimson, he remembers that all our fleet is in Pacific waters.

Dismissing the idea that we or any other nation are likely to declare war on Japan, what is the possibility that some morning we may wake up to read that the powerful Japanese navy, with aircraft, has attacked our West Coast?

Most of February the Navy worked upon this idea in carrying out its annual battle maneuvers. Could such a raid be successful against our defense? As the problem was laid out, the black fleet, impersonating an enemy, was given the advantage in speed and superiority of aircraft against the defending blue force with a slow but powerful group of battleships, supported by submarines and fewer planes.

It was a matter of strategy on a grand scale, with the Pacific as a gameboard and 1,200 miles of coast line to defend. Early March finds the Navy drawing its conclusions from the opinions of the umpires, but no announcement will be made of the victor. The strategy of both sides will be discussed, and the high command of the Navy will be the wiser.

COTTON STATIONERY.

King Cotton, the commodity on which a large percentage of our people depend for a livelihood, says the Scientific American, has recently shown signs of life in the commodity markets, its price having jumped upward despite large supplies on hand.

A most interesting new use for it is as stationery for letterheads in the form of a sized cotton cloth. This cloth is the product of a Memphis, Tenn., mill which treats the raw material according to a formula perfected in that city.

The result is a "starched" sheet of cloth having sufficient "body" to take pen and ink writing, typewriting, steel die embossing, lithographing and type printing equally well.

The price of this cotton cloth stationery is, of course, somewhat higher than that of average letterhead and bond paper, but it is more distinctive and far less perishable.

The Spirit That Won Before.

POST HASTE

One can scarcely credit this sudden credit that makes one feel a credit to the community.

The cane rush that congressional freshmen have been rehearsing will be suppressed by faculty orders and a large attendance of old grads.

Senator Robinson's radio address split the time fairly between apologies for the old Congress and advance alibis for the next one's abdication of authority.

We are going to have some emergency money, but it won't be of the nonde-scrip variety some have advocated.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Perkins has decided the question herself; she is to be addressed as Madam Secretary.

Sinclair Lewis says there are twenty things that might precipitate a European war within two years. His score is about right, but his timing is slow.

New York City is not afraid of scrip. Its new issue will have a 400 per cent backing. About $100,000,000 of the same kind was redeemed at par in 1907 and $69,000,000 in 1893.

It is a fitting testimonial to good old Tony Cermak that it takes three men to fill his place in running Chicago.

A horde of folks can now get money from their safe deposit boxes if they take a chance on being discovered as hoarders.

Since both an election and a military usurper combined to put Venizelos on the spot in Greece it may be several days this time before he is recalled to the premiership.

If Japan chooses to continue biting off pieces of China she will attain a state where she chews but can't swallow.

The prize costume picture of the inaugural is one of Batter-up Rainey simultaneously sporting a plug hat and a pipe.

After a couple of years' growth of gray hair over fickle European currencies there is a bit of unholy satisfaction in seeing the folks over there so worried over the dollar that we know is O. K.

Japan may be short on world psychology, all same another erstwhile belligerent, but inside inflammation doubtless tells her Moscow isn't going to send that army west from Moscow.

The old war horse the President rode into the banking breach was a lucky find, and how fortunate it hadn't been mechanized.

You're mistaken; First Assistant Postmaster General O'Mahoney comes from Wyoming. PAUL HUDSON.

ILLUMINATED HIGHWAYS.

Headlights are superfluous on roads lighted by the new highway lamps developed by Prof. Gilles Holst in Holland. Neon gas and sodium vapor are used to produce this effective illumination. The light, a pleasant yellow-orange color, is almost monochromatic, which tends to bring out marked contrasts, making a remarkably clear outline of objects on the road. The first road equipped with the new lamps was the highway between Maastrich and Nijmegen, Holland, where, it was possible to drive 60 miles an hour at night, with perfect visibility.

The lamps are placed 33 feet apart and 26 feet above the highway. Special reflectors keep the rays from hitting the eye of the motorist, though there is little glare at any time and the eye is attracted to the road rather than to the lights. Before being used on a public highway the lamps were given a year's test in the grounds of the manufacturer's laboratory, and finding they met the necessary requirements, they were put into public use.

Better Herbs With Your Own Crowd Than a Stalled Ox With the High-Hats.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE pursuit of happiness, which the fathers regarded as an inalienable right, usually is wasted effort. You can't achieve happiness by force of will, as you might achieve success, and the determination to have it at any cost invariably develops a spirit of selfishness that makes the quest hopeless.

But if it is impossible to win happiness by conscious effort, you can at least avoid many of the things that cause unhappiness.

One of these, since our happiness is at the mercy of our associates, is incompatibility.

People smile in derision when incompatibility is given as a reason for divorce, but it would be difficult to find a better or more urgent one. If two people can't "get along" together, their one hope of happiness lies in separation.

To be happy, we must associate with people of our own class—not our "social equals," but those who share our tastes and interests.

If a man's one absorbing interest is books and a woman' one source of pleasure is bridge, on what foundation will they base a comradeship to survive the intimacy of marriage?

If one woman in a social group makes a hobby and passion of flowers, another of woolly dogs and another of social service, what mutual interest can they find as material for conversation.

Of course people of widely divergent interests can be friends, but there is no happiness for intimate associates who have little or nothing in common.

That explains the unhappiness of those who quit the class into which they were born and look for friends among the rich. And it explains the "happy though poor" state of many who had their day of lonely grandeur in boom times and now are back in the familiar and beloved environment of their earlier poverty.

The people we enjoy are those who speak our language, worship our gods, share our ideals, envy whom we envy and snub whom we snub.

To marry out of your class or climb out of it is to invite unhappiness. You can't be one with people who say a thing is incomparably exquisite if you say it's lousy.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Conservative Trend.
Boston Transcript.

Added evidence of a trend toward conservatism in the Roosevelt administration is seen in the selection of Representative Lewis William Douglas, of Arizona, to be Director of the Budget. This is not a Cabinet position but, in its relation to Congress and legislation, is actually more important. A Cabinet officer is concerned only with his own department, and he is more likely to meet Congress as a suppliant than as a dictator. The money he may spend, in fact, is more or less dependent on the decision of the Director of the Budget; and as events are shaping themselves in Washington, it will lie largely with Mr. Douglas, who is working with Swager Sherley, a sterling man, and Daniel C. Roper, prospective Secretary of Commerce, to say what department activities shall be continued and what abandoned.

A Sorry Showing.
Los Angeles Times.

The admissions before the Senate stock-market investigation that the National City Company, in selling Peruvian bonds to investors in this country, was less than frank in giving prospective investors the full information in its possession as to conditions in that country, make a sorry showing for a fiduciary institution. Agents of the company in Peru, it appears to be established, reported very unfavorably on political conditions, but the company ignored the warnings and withheld this vital information from its prospectuses issued to persuade investors to buy the bonds.

Backed by the People.
Louisville Courier-Journal.

Should it become necessary for President Roosevelt to carry out his pledge to seek authority to do what Congress should do if Congress fails to do it, he will be backed warmly by the American people. This has been made manifest by their approving reception of that pledge and the general comment of the press.

As the Republican Knoxville, Tenn., Journal says, "The unbeaten spirit of America rallies to the courage and confidence of the new President's inaugural address. By the very oath he has taken, it is his to assume unhesitatingly the leadership of the great army of people dedicated to a disciplined attack upon their common problem."

Roosevelt's Address.
Topeka Capital.

The brief inaugural address of President Roosevelt is marked by its note of self-confidence.

The most significant statement in the address is the assurance to the country that "I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that a stricken Nation in the midst of a stricken world may require."

Mr. Hoover's observation that we are in the presence of an incipient outbreak to economic war in the world leads one to wonder if he has looked up the little word "incipient" lately.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Young Man Protests Against Defeat of Training Camp Plan to Take Care of Idle Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a young fellow, one of thousands, who is out of work, with no prospects of it now, and unwilling to hang around a burden and handicap to friends who are themselves hard pressed. I had heard of Senator Couzens' measure propdsing to give us a chance in training camps at Army posts, and felt sure that Congress would indorse such a sensible plan.

But today I learn that our congressional representatives have flatly turned it down—in the name of economy, I suppose! And so they leave us to hoof it around while they take care of bankers, railways, veterans and such like. I wonder how Congress plans to retain the loyalty of its young fellows, who are here and in want through no fault of their own, but, as it seems to us, on account of the rather brainless, money-mad older folks who have been running things, and now are yelling ruin.

To get into bread lines is humiliating; to turn panhandler or hobo is still more outrageous to our feelings; to have to play parasite unwillingly in a country of 3,000,000 square miles of the best land on earth, and with plenty of money, as compared with other nations, is a disgrace to a nation calling itself Christian and boasting of its wonderful resources and educational training. Believe me, sir, such congressional callousness toward young Americans isn't going to raise our admiration of our Government.

I didn't suppose that the camp plan would be a real solution, but it would have shown some practical sympathy toward and appreciation of a class which as a whole is just as eager to serve as it wishes to be served. And what irritates us most is to read how this same Congress that refuses this little aid to us keeps on pouring millions and millions into other schemes and on behalf of other classes, many of whom are in trouble just because of their own shortsightedness. We are thinking today; tomorrow we'll be voting!

How Will Liquor Be Sold After Repeal? End of Booze Racket Foreseen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The question of repeal is now up to the States. We shall see if they have enough nerve to back up their cry for repeal.

If they do vote wet, however, there will be another question to settle. Will we have saloons as in the pre-war days or shall liquor be sold at the grocery store? Many think it will be sold at the store.

Some argue that there will be no place to drink without bothering those not interested. Men should have a place to go and not be embarrassed by the opposite sex. Women and others come back with ideas that some women drink as much as men. Where will they drink if we have our old-fashioned saloons again? Mothers and wives say that they do not care to have their sons and husbands hanging around saloons to learn some new form of devilment. These are just a few points for both sides.

If we go down to the facts, however, we should not stop at these petty arguments. We should think of the good repeal can do if we use it right. Many thousands of men will be put to work, booze racketeering will have to stop, those who drink will be able to do so without wondering if their eyesight will go, and last but not least, we will have fewer gang killings. Hopes President Will Work for Return of Regular Wages.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The late President Harding persuaded the steel industry to inaugurate the 8-hour day.

Perhaps President Roosevelt could persuade industrial leaders to restore predepression wages. Industrial leaders are inclined to listen to sound advice of the President, even though he has no machinery to force his views on them.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE NEED OF THE DAY.

I'm not one to spout and preach but there's none so poor of purse
But can look about a little and discover some one worse.
And I've come to the conclusion that we all must bear in mind
Wheresoever we may journey there's a need of being kind.

In these days of stress and trial
there is no one fancy-free
Who can turn his back on trouble and pretend he doesn't see.
Want is everywhere about us, just ahead or just behind
And it's everybody's duty to remember to be kind.

In the lavish days of plenty we could chuckle at the whim
Of the miser hard and selfish and just make a joke of him,
But today it isn't funny in the face of want and pain
To see misers hoarding dollars they are fortunate to gain.

Help the one who's nearest to you;
serve the need that's close at hand
Share with those within your circle;
then if possible expand,
Do as much as you are able to relieve the woe you find.
These are days when God expects us to be thoughtful and be kind.

ED WYNN TO DIRECT NEW RADIO CIRCUIT

Station WOL to Distribute Local Programs of Amalgamated.

Program distributed by the Amalgamated Broadcasting Co., a new chain in which Ed Wynn is interested, may be available to local audiences through station WOL. The new chain, which will operate in New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Del., Baltimore, and Washington, is expected to start operation March 15 or shortly thereafter. It is said to be financed by the Kunsky-Trundle Co., of Detroit.

Ed Wynn plans to select the talent and may appear on the air after his contract with NBC expires.

WOL does not intend to become a member of the chain, according to LeRoy D. Mark, but will join it on a time-selling basis. Local-sponsored programs will have preference over material from the chain. Western Union lines have been installed and WOL expects to be ready when the chain starts operation.

Playing of Bands Swanson Problem

Protests Received Against Ban of Adams From Radio Programs.

Radio broadcasting by the Navy and Marine Bands will be one of the first problems to be met by the new Secretary of the Navy. Their playing over the air was stopped a few days ago by an order of Secretary of the Navy Adams.

Many protests have been lodged against the order and they will be brought to the attention of Secretary Swanson, who alone has the power to remand the order.

The ban was made after complaints that their playing over the networks tended to aggravate unemployment among musicians and was an improper use of Government personnel.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother: I have been having some conversations with these girls who have children and who are getting divorces to marry the "nexts" who are waiting for them. Clare, for example, and Tish Benson, who left two weeks ago, and a number of others. I find they have all thought it out very carefully and do not feel they are sacrificing their children. This is the gist of what they say: That today the world lives more and more in apartments (which is certainly true in New York, where most of them come from). And that it is not possible, especially in fairly small quarters, to conceal parents unhappiness from the children. And that the children become nervous and sorrow over it, hearing quarrels and sensing hatred or even irritation in the hair. And that it is better for them to split their time between parents, at least one of whom is happily remarried, than to grow up in a disagreeable atmosphere. Then they say that they feel their children a great deal, but not their whole lives, but even if they did it would still be better for the children to separate. These girls pooh-pooh the attitude of a Frenchman who once said to me, speaking of marriage, "We prepare for three weeks, love for three years, and endure for 30 years, going our own ways, perhaps, during that time, but keeping the home together for the sake of the children." They say no, it is so much more honest to divorce and marry the man you love—and that it is immoral and degrading to keep on living with a man who has become repulsive to you.

When I asked them what made them think the second love would last any more than the first one had, they say at the time of their first marriage they were too young to know what it was all about—that they didn't know anything about men really, or know themselves enough to know what they wanted. But that by now they had suffered and profited by their mistakes, and that while they realized that passionate love would not last forever with any man or woman, still it would be worth while if it lasted, say, five or ten years (they are not as young as they once were, they said. The average age is about 30), and that after that they would be perfectly contented with the next stages that such love developed into. What can you say to that? The surprise to me is that they think it out so deeply. And, remember, most of them have been in love with their "nexts" for several years before it comes to divorce. Tish had loved hers for six years. Now you know what the Reno girls think, even if you don't agree. Best love,

ELIZABETH.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THOSE who journey to the Fox Theater this week to see "Amos 'n' Andy" get a good idea of what the famous comedians are like when they broadcast. It is, in fact, as near as any one ever gets to witnessing their actual radio performances.

Their rule not to allow any one in the studios when they are on the air is rigidly adhered to. The only person we ever heard of who saw an "Amos 'n' Andy" broadcast was a man in Pittsburgh who hid himself in the studio hours before the broadcast began and who, to avoid detection, remained there an hour or so after they had left. "Amos 'n' Andy" were unaware of his presence.

We know of a half-dozen persons who in one way or another tried to talk themselves into being allowed to attend an "Amos 'n' Andy" broadcast, but to date haven't known of one who succeeded.

"Amos 'n' Andy" are most particular about each and every broadcast. Amos once told this writer that they make it an invariable rule to arrive at the studio at least half an hour ahead of time.

"We do this," he explained, "so that we will have plenty of time to get into the mood of the episode which we are enacting."

This tied in pretty well with something Andy said several years ago. He was asked how he accounted for the unprecedented success and continued popularity of their presentation: "I don't know," he replied, "unless it is that we take our work seriously."

THE first appearance of "Amos 'n' Andy" on a local stage is at Loew's Fox, but what was probably their first performance in Washington was given one Sunday morning several years ago at Walter Reed Hospital. Amos went out there to see an old Virginia friend who had been wounded in France.

Miss Margaret H. Lower, field director of the Red Cross, who has dedicated her life to the happiness of the Walter Reed boys, sent a message to "Amos 'n' Andy," through Roxy, asking if they would come out for a performance. The comedians obliged gladly, the patients of the entire hospital were assembled, and "Amos 'n' Andy" surprised the audience with their versatility.

They performed a half dozen skits, each and every one of which might have been elaborated into a vaudeville act. They can do many things in addition to the "Amos 'n' Andy" characters with which the public associates them. Both are musical and Amos has a singing voice with which he would get by on any vaudeville circuit.

Miss Antonia Brico, one of the three best-known feminine orchestra conductors in America today, will direct the symphony concert over WRC at 9 o'clock. Miss Brico studied conducting abroad under Dr. Karl Muck and Wilhelm Furtwaengler. Three years ago she received the baton of the Berlin Symphony Orchestra. Her first appearance in America was at the Hollywood Bowl.

Tonight's program will include Beethoven's "Coriolanus" overture; Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherezade" and two nocturnes, "Nuages" and "Fetes," by Debussy.

Antonia Brico shares with Ethel Leginska and Emma Steiner the distinction of being an orchestra conductor of first order.

The Charis Musical Review, with Gladys Baxter, Edward Nell and Vincent Sorey's Orchestra, is coming to WRC's audience for the first time at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Singin' Sam will reply to many requests by performing a well-known minstrel number a la Bert Williams when he includes "If He Comes In, I'm Going Out" in his program tonight (WJSV, 8:15 o'clock). "Lazy Moon," "Next to the Last Kiss" and "Mother" will also be among his offerings.

EASTER services from the ancient Beuron Monastery in the lower Danube Valley will head the special programs which will be carried over a national network on Easter Sunday, April 16.

The monastery was founded in the year 999 by Augustinian monks, was later destroyed in the course of different wars in the Middle Ages, and then rebuilt in the middle of the last century by the Benedictine order.

Bing Crosby, who got his name as an Injun scout in his Tacoma backyard, will introduce a new song, entitled, "Shuffle Off to Buffalo," as a feature of his program with Norman Brokenshire (WJSV, 9 p. m.). Bing will also sing "Try a Little Tenderness" and "More Than You Know," while Leonard Hayton strikes up the band in "I Got a Right to Sing the Blues."

BELIEVING that radio offers the best means of popularizing poetry with the general public, John Masefield, England's poet laureate, advocates an experiment in this country similar to one which is being tried in Great Britain.

Masefield thinks that half a dozen promising young poets should be given a year in which to devise an effective method of presenting poetry over the ether.

An old friend and former classmate of Fred Waring dropped in to see the conductor the other day and found him reading through a pile of fan mail. Many of the correspondents congratulated Fred on the orchestra's elaborate vocal selections, which Fred directs and frequently takes part in.

The friend read through a few of the letters and began to laugh.

Pressed for an explanation, he said: "I was just thinking of the time they refused to let you in the Glee Club at Penn State."

STUDIO pickups: Josef Bonime, musical director, was accompanist for Mischa Elman for ten years. . . . Rufe Davis, of the Radio Rubes, has a celluloid collar bought fifteen years ago in his home town of Mangum, Okla. . . . Ramona, Paul Whiteman's singing pianist, collects earrings. . . . Georgia Backus plays the feminine leads in the Big Ben Dream Dramas. . . . Howard Claney attended Carnegie Tech.

WEDNESDAY MARCH 8, 1933 SPORTS

1,800 SEE SARRON STOP SCHWARTZ IN 7TH ROUND

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

WHILE the current banking situation of the country is not all that could be desired, all seems to be well with the Nation's postal system.

Almost before the ink on Tuesday morning's Post had dried, the mail man yesterday deposited in this department a letter of mild protest concerning the article that had taken exception to Joe Cronin's plan to move Oswald Bluege from seventh to second place in the batting order.

My observations found a dissenter in William A. Kesmodel, of 400 Seward square southeast, who precedes his polite ending with a raft of logical arguments in defense of Cronin's announcement that Bluege would bat in second place with Manush dropping to third.

Points Favoring Bluege Overlooked.

"It occurred to me," Mr. Kesmodel begins, "that you might be overlooking a couple of points in favor of Cronin's selection of Bluege to bat second in the 1933 line-up. After my recent attempt to read Mr. Griffith's mind in regard to his 'All-Star' team that he will select in The Post's baseball contest, I thought I was through until the time rolls around to guess in harmony with Babe Ruth on his All-Star team, but this Bluege proposition has set me off again.

"You mentioned that Bluege was a pretty good bunter and noted for his ability as a base-runner, but you suggested that these were not ample reasons for putting a .258 hitter in second position when we have such a proficient bunter and .342 hitter as Heinie Manush available.

"Right, you are in some respects, but it seems to me that Manush's talents can be put to just as good use in third position, while Bluege has two accomplishments that would not be nearly so valuable farther down in the batting order, namely:

Bluege Draws Passes and Hits Nice Flies.

"(1)—His ability to draw walks. Maybe I'm all wrong on paper, but it seems to me that Bluege draws more bases on balls, unintentional, of course, than anyone on the team. That is usually considered a desirable quality for a man in the No. 2 position.

"(2)—His ability to hit long flies. I may be all wet on this one, too, but I've seen Buddy Myer hit quite a few triples at Griffith Stadium and either languish on third or be forced at home on an infield tap. Bluege doesn't make many hits, but I believe he smacks plenty of long flies to left field. This may sound like a weak reason, but don't you agree with me that one of the most effective ways of subduing a batting attack is to force a runner at home plate after he has started proceedings with a rousing extra-base hit? Manush makes plenty of hits, but he also has a tendency to hit grounders at a time that may prove embarrassing to a runner on third.

"P. S.—I have a hunch, too, that Bluege's batting average will be considerably higher than .258 if he bats second this year, and I don't think Manush will be adversely affected by batting third."

Manush Still Rated Better.

O. K., Mr. Kesmodel, you're certainly entitled to your opinions. But I still think that the scoring percentages are with the Nats with a .342 hitter following Buddy Myer to the plate instead of a .258 batter.

And one more thing, Bluege, batting second in the line-up, would go to the bat approximately 40 more times during the season than he would batting seventh. And the men who follow him in the line-up would correspondingly go to bat less often. I doubt if Bluege's presence in second place is so imperative as to cause the club to forfeit the advantages that the more frequent appearances of Manush, Goslin and Cronin at the plate would carry.

Schulte Star In Batting Session

Big Outfielder's Long Drives Are Feature of Nats' Drill.

Stewart, Russell and Whitehill in Clever Turns on Mound.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BILOXI, Miss., Mar 7.—Swinging from the heels, Washington's slew of thick-hipped sluggers took their first raps of the season here today in a spirited workout and, if they failed to break down any of the fences, it can be laid jointly to the facts that: (1) It is an overnight drive from home plate to the laxative ad in center; (2) the weather was too darn chilly to set much of the elderly sap in their limbs circulating, and (3) Walter Stewart, Jack Russell and Lefty Whitehill were giving such a performance in the box that Clark Griffith wiped a feverishly damp brow and gave vent to a prayer of thanks that Washington wouldn't have to bat against them this year.

Goose Goslin as kittenish as in 1924 when he publicly announced his willingness to take over the diadem of Babe Ruth, hit only two balls on the nose during the long morning, both of which rolled within expectorating distance of the right-field fence, but otherwise he added to the gusty winds that swept the park by fanning lustily. Heinie Manush was another whose batting eye was bleary with the long winter's layoff.

Schulte, Bolton Show Way.

Fred Schulte and Cliff Bolton stood out in a morning devoted almost entirely to batting practice. Fred is a big-shouldered, thin-waisted, big-hipped boy with a soupbowl haircut, piercing teutonic blue eyes and a vicious right-handed swing at the ball. He appeared to be ready to do that little job of giving the Washington baseball fans an attack of amnesia concerning Sammy West. He handled himself like Joe Judge in the pepper drills, but it was his shrieking drives to left field that stood him out. Bolton, who had the advantage of having more hitting practice than the fielders, made most of them look like sandlotters.

The fielding of flies and grounders was deferred until tomorrow because the ball diamond of this "City of Perpetual Sunshine" was about as dry and crisp as a submerged sponge after yesterday's light little 6-inch rain. Tomorrow, Joe Cronin will set the boys to their fielding chores, just to assure himself that he has about the best fielding club in the business.

Cronin Runs Drill Like Clockwork.

It might be put in right here that the arrival of the boisterous semi-ungovernable players such as Manush, Goslin and one or two others hasn't altered Cronin's position down here. He ran today's drill like clock work, standing behind the frail portable backstop and directing his burly puppets to do this and that—and they did it. Joe's eternal peppiness is catching. The camp is quarrantined with it.

Bob Boken, the kid from the Kansas City Blues, who will have to oust the determined and silent Cecil Travis to stick with the club, worked out well enough in the limited confines of pepper-drilling today. His work at the plate, however, gave some inkling as to the reason for his .280 batting average in the minors last year. He's a big gangling kid who looks good on grounders. When asked what position he was out for, he immediately said, "shortstop."

Well, you gotta give the kid credit.

Jeby Meets V. Dundee In Middle Title Bout

New York, March 7 (U.P.).—Ben Jeby, recognized in New York State as middleweight champion, will defend his title against Vince Dundee, of Newark, N. J., in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden, March 17, the Garden announced today. Dundee beat Jeby twice before the latter became champion.

Lott Will Seek Place On Davis Cup Squad

Philadelphia, March 7 (A.P.).—George Lott, of Chicago, who did not compete for a place on the Davis Cup Tennis Team last year, will strive for the squad this season.

In a letter to Fitz Eugene Dixon, cocaptain of the team last year, Lott says he expects to enter the lists when the trials for 1933 are held.

Lott recently has been playing in the South.

Louisiana Ring Body Threatens Jadick Ban

New Orleans, March 7 (A.P.).—Louisiana's State Boxing Commission today asked the Pennsylvania State commission to investigate published reports that Johnny Jadick, former junior world's welterweight champion, had sharply criticised Louisiana officials who officiated in his recent fight here with Battling Shaw, New Orleans' Mexican boxer.

The commission here said Jadick, who lives in Philadelphia, would be fined and suspended in Louisiana unless the published reports were explained "to the satisfaction of the local body."

Shaw won the decision in the fight here and was awarded the junior welter title.

The Louisiana commission said Philadelphia newspapers afterward carried alleged statements from Jadick that he had "gotten a raw deal in New Orleans."

The Big Five of the Nats' Staff Whose Pitching Arms Hold Club's Fate

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

The success or failure of Joe Cronin's first season as a big league manager will be founded on the results obtained by the quintet of pitchers pictured above who form the club's first line of defense in the box. Left to right are Al Thomas, Monte Weaver, Earl Whitehill, Walter Stewart and Alvin Crowder, three righthanders and two lefthanders, who will take regular turns according to present plans.

HAGEN PLANS TO RETIRE IN 1934

Hopes to Make 1933 Banner Year and Then Will Quit.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, March 7 (A.P.).—Maybe the lure of the storming, admiring galleries will make the famous showman of the fairways change his mind, but Walter Hagen plans to retire from all active competition after his 1933 golf engagements here and abroad.

His plan, revealed today by a reliable source, is to wage a serious campaign to recover his major titles on both sides of the Atlantic, captain America's Ryder Cup team to victory in England, and then retire to the business of designing golf clubs and equipment.

Would Quit While Still a Star.

Although the "Haig" has been one of the big money winners of the current winter campaign with his total earnings placed at around $2,000, he is 40 years old and anxious to say good-by to active big time golf while he's still regarded as one of the truly great shotmakers of the game. Moreover, his connection with a golf club manufacturing house is demanding more and more of his time.

If Hagen does go through with his retirement—many pros will tell you he never will as long as he can provide a thrill for an awe-struck gallery—the professional golf world will lose probably its greatest showman. Since Sir Walter first rose to fame by beating Chick Evans out for the National open title at Midlothian, Chicago, way back in 1914, he has been unquestionably the idol of the galleries, excepting Bobby Jones. He has played before more than a million golf fans and has given them a show worth watching by his great professional record in England and America. In the past few years, scores of tournament officials admitted the Haig's presence in competition, like that of Bobby Jones' in the amateur tournaments, swelled the gate receipts far over the danger line of red ink.

Great Mark for Others to Shoot At.

Even if Hagen fails to annex another major title this year and then retires, he will leave a great mark for the future professional stars to shoot at. In his sweep to fame, he has won the American national open twice, in 1914 and 1919; captured the British open four times, in 1922, '24, '28, and '29; won the professional golf championship of the United States five times, in 1921, '24, '25, '26, and 1927, and the metropolitan title in 1916, '19, and '20. The Western open championship has belonged to him five times, in 1916, '21, '26, '27, and '32. Canada's open escaped him until 1931. He has captained all of America's Ryder Cup teams in official play.

Max Marston to Head Handicap Golf Today

New York, March 7 (U.P.).—Max Marston, of Philadelphia, formerly United States national champion, has been elected president of the Handicap Golfers Association of America, it was announced today.

The following vice presidents were elected: Lowry Arnold, Atlanta; Stacey Bender, New York; Harry E. Radix, Chicago; J. K. Wadley, Dallas. A. C. Gregson, New York, was elected secretary-treasurer.

GAME SOUGHT TONIGHT.

The Mount Rainier unlimiteds have a gym but no game for tonight. Any team interested should call Emerson 8108 any time today.

UNIONISTS MEET TONIGHT.

The Federal Employe Unionists, North Section winners in the Departmental League last summer, will hold their initial meeting of the year at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of Miss Gertrude M. McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes.

BILOXI BUNTS

Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., March 7.—This Kid Boken is pretty resourceful, for a ball player. He quit school at St. Louis to take a baseball job with a little league in Texas, which broke up three weeks after he joined it. The next day he was at work in the oil fields, but quit as soon as he connected with Joplin. He was with the Kansas City Blues for two years.

Speaking of resourcefulness, last year Bucky Harris and Detroit played the Blues, and Boken, never an exceptional hitter, achieved the following results in five trips to the plate against the Tigers: A single, a double, two triples and on his last time up a home run. Bucky was in a frenzy to get him, but the Blues wanted $15,000 and Frank Navin didn't seem to think that Boken's record warranted that ransom.

Weaver Sees Little Difference.

Mrs. Earl Whitehill is the girl you see on the Sun Maid raisin boxes.

Monte Weaver says there isn't much difference between pitching in the International League and with Washington. He doesn't believe he expends any more energy with the Nats than he did with Baltimore, or that he's really any better. Monte has summed it all up mathematically, namely, that although you are hit considerably harder in the big leagues, the team behind you is so good defensively that you are back just about where you started.

Tonight several members of the Cleveland Club, now encamped at New Orleans, came over to listen to the platitudes at the banquet given the Nationals by the chamber of commerce. The group included Roy Spencer, late of Washington, and Bozie Berger, of the good Hyattsville burghers.

Many Opportunities for Caricaturist.

If a caricaturist were let loose among the 1933 Nats, he would dote on:

Cronin's apple bloom cheeksies.

Griffith's jungle underbrush eyebrows.

Moe Berg's chronic expression as if some one were tickling his toes.

The schonzzles of Kerr, Goslin and Schacht.

Fred Schulte's hard-shaven temples.

Cliff Bolton's nu-grape bottle shape.

Nick Altrock's quid.

Joe Kuhel's catcher's mitt hands.

Ossie Bluege's bright sunken eyes.

Heinie Manush's floppy baseball shirts, which, conversely to the beat Salvation Army traditions, may be down but they are always out.

Mangin, Wood, Alonso and Shields Triumph in One-Day Tourney.

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 7 (A.P.).—The United States made a clean sweep of the four singles matches in the one-day international team series against England at the Heights Casino today.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., indoor champion, and Sydney B. Wood, jr., of New York, clinched the victory after Frank Shields and Manuel Alonso won the first two matches.

Mangin defeated H. G. M. Cooper, 6—2, 9—7, in a hard match marked by unusual volley. Wood triumphed over R. K. Tinkler without much trouble, 6—3, 6—4.

Two double matches remained in the series.

VAN AND IRVING ON AIR.

Sharkey-Carnera Fight Hopes High

N. Y. Fight Body Has Not Yet Turned "Thumbs Down" on Bout.

New York, March 7 (U.P.).—Prospects of a June title bout between Heavyweight Champion Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, were brighter today when Chairman John J. Phelan, of the New York State Athletic Commission, said the commission had not yet "turned thumbs down on it."

This was in direct contradiction to the declaration of Commissioner William Muldoon, after the death of Ernie Schaaf, who said Carnera would be compelled to confine his future activities to the super-heavyweight class.

Col. D. Walker Wear, who succeeded Postmaster General James A. Farley, on the commission, attended his first meeting today, and repeated that he was not opposed to a Carnera-Sharkey title bout. Champion Sharkey visited the commissioners to pay his respects.

UPSETS SEEN IN COURT TOURNEY

Post's Event for A. A. U. Titles Promise Dope Spills.

AN old custom of upsetting the other fellow, quite prevalent among teams seeking District A. A. U. championships, is expected to be in evidence tonight at Tech High School, where the 1933 games are being conducted under the auspices of The Post.

W. Dewey Haight, official matchmaker, has rounded up eight teams that should provide the fans with all the excitement they crave in the four games listed. Every one smacks of action and there are good prospects for a couple of decisions which will not be strictly according to Hoyle.

St. Stephens' Meet Penn Tiremen.

St. Stephen's cocky little 130-pound quintet takes the first step in acquiring a title at 7 o'clock when it struts its stuff against the Pennsylvania Tire lads, a combination from upper Fourteenth street that has cut a wide swath in local court circles this season.

At 8 o'clock the War Department A. G. O. five, 130-pound title-holders last season, make their debut in the 145-pound chase, engaging the Triple Tau tossers. With the same team intact from last year on the floor, A. G. O. is considered a real contender for the crown, but a glance at the enviable record compiled by the Fraternity team dispels any apprehensions that the fray will be one-sided.

Nine o'clock brings the Boys Club Big Five out into the open against the Miller Furniture representatives. Holders of the city senior baseball honors, the Millers are out to add to their laurels with a basket ball title. Coached by Waverly Wheeler, Tech High star, the team has enjoyed only mediocre success, but many of the games lost were by narrow margins. In the Boys Club it encounters a powerful team, the dark horse of the games.

Mount Vernon, perennial A. A. U. title-seeker, is cast in the feature spot at 10 o'clock opposite Lazzeri's Clovers, a group of courtmen gleaned from the prep schools. Mount Vernon figures to be a slight favorite on paper, but the game should be close and bitterly contested.

A radio has been installed on a balcony overlooking the gym and the old maestro, Harry Fiddesop, entertains the fans by tuning in on 101 stations between halves, frequently filling the place with static by way of variety. In his spare moments, Harry looks after the sprained ankles, dislocated knees, &c., of players.

Complaints by the gents who sweep up the gym after games each night have been logded with Winfree Johnson, said gents stating that they must be in bed sooner, as duty commands that they be on hand again the next morning at 7 o'clock. Johnson, therefore, may be obliged to curtail the schedule, playing the final game at 9 o'clock. By using the side courts, however, two games may be played at 7 o'clock, keeping the games moving on schedule.

A. A. U. Basket Ball Tourney Schedule

Seven o'clock—Jewish Community Center vs. Dumbarton M. E., 130-pound class, south court.

Lone Winner Captures Record Daily Double

Miami, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—Today's daily double, composed of Aunt Marsa, which paid $127.90 and Traffic Judge, which returned $11.90, paid the longest odds of the Hialeah meeting—$1,150.20. Only one ticket was sold on the combination, but the lucky man refused to give his name. He purchased four combinations in an effort to hit the right one.

Ruth's Threat To Quit Seen Serious

Reiterates Financial Independence in Salary Stand.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, March 7 (U.P.).—Baseball circles today believed there was a 50-50 chance that Babe Ruth might quit the New York Yankees before the pennant season opens in April.

They regard his salary dispute more seriously than in previous years because of (1) Ruth's feeling that he has been imposed upon with an offered $25,000 salary reduction, and (2) because of the attitude taken by Ed Barrow, the Yank's business manager, that Ruth should have been cut more than $25,000.

Ruppert Will Not Yield, He Says.

In addition Col. Jacob Ruppert, millionaire owner of the club, has indicated that he will not yield to the Babe's demands this year. Col. Ruppert told the United Press today he hoped to go down to the Yanks' camp at St. Petersburg in a week or so for a conference with the Babe, but he was not certain that the trip could be arranged because of the pressure of business.

"I don't think we'll have much trouble signing the Babe this year," the colonel concluded.

However, down at St. Pete, Ruppert's famous right fielder declared, "If the Yankees do not raise their offer of $50,000, I will retire from baseball. The present financial situation has no bearing on my value to the team. I am well off and independent of baseball."

Although Ruth threatened to quit baseball several times before, and actually did once when displeased with a ruling on barnstorming, he has never been so vindictive in his statements. Worth approximately $400,000, and having an annual income of $25,000 from a trust fund, the Babe is in a position to back up his statements.

Will Ignore Barrow, Says Babe.

The Babe has been "burned up" over his salary situation since the day that newspapers carried the report that he would be cut $25,000 in his season's contract. This was published a couple of weeks before he received the document, and he had not been consulted on the matter.

This slash apparently was instigated by Business Manager Barrow, and the Bambino was so incensed at Barrow because of it that he announced he would not dicker with him over salary differences. He would hold all conferences—"if any"—with Col. Ruppert.

Barrow added fuel to the flames by making no secret of his belief that Ruth should be reduced more than $25,000 in view of his 39 years and the present financial outlook.

Col. Ruppert, although a red-hot baseball fan, is a level-headed business man who does not permit sentiment to interfere with his financial dealings. Moreover, Barrow is his right-hand man in baseball, and the colonel usually follows his advice without deviation.

Meanwhile the Babe will go ahead with his training, reporting to Manager Joe McCarthy tomorrow. The Yanks play their first exhibition game against the Braves March 14, and Ruppert is expected to arrive at camp before then.

Fair Grounds Officials May Extend Meeting

New Orleans, March 7 (A.P.).—Although official announcement was withheld, it was understood in racing circles here today that the Fair Grounds track, which closed Monday because of the national banking situation, will resume racing Saturday. Official announcement of future racing was expected to be made tomorrow.

It also was understood that the meet would be extended to make up for the racing days lost this week and to allow the horsemen to obtain getaway money so that none would be left stranded here at the close of the meet.

The feature race scheduled for Saturday is the Duncan F. Kenner stake of $2,000 for the half-mile juvenile championship.

Meanwhile track officials are cashing checks for the horsemen through the mutuel funds held in vaults at the track.

Uneven Fight Is Awarded Syrian

Schwartz Refuses to Continue After Eye Is Cut Open.

Won Only 1 Round; Romano Stopped by Landers in 5th.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

SEEKING to climb another rung in his attempted comeback, Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, had his pugilistic hopes knocked into a cocked hat last night at Portner's Arena, where the Birmingham Syrian, Pete Sarron, lashed him with a punishing body attack to win by a technical knockout in the seventh round of their scheduled eight-round bout.

Not as surprising as the outcome was the manner in which the scrap ended. Forced into his own corner by the onrushing Sarron, Schwartz attempted to weather a storm of lefts and rights, but in vain. The Southerner stepped back and uncorked an overhand blow with his right glove that caught Schwartz flush on the left eye, opening up an old wound.

Blood literally poured from the cut as Schwartz turned to Referee Charley Short and protested Sarron's alleged butting tactics, but Short waved him aside and ordered him to continue fighting, as he had done on previous occasions when Schwartz made similar complaints.

"Raw Deal" Is Protested.

Evidently believing his protest was justified, Schwartz turned his back on Sarron and yelled "Give him the fight" to Short. The latter immediately stepped in and raised Sarron's hand, while Benny's seconds crowded around, protesting loudly the "raw deal" given their fighter. But if it were a raw deal, Benny asked for it.

At the very outset it was apparent that Schwartz was up against a problem too large for him to solve. Sarron stepped in at the opening bell and plastered the Monumental City lad with everything but Aunt Tessie's bustle.

Sarron landed a blow to the midsection that looked low and Schwartz dropped to one knee and claimed a foul. It was not allowed by Short, as the two were wearing foul-proof protectors. Next he turned a painful gaze to Short and requested that he prevent Sarron from butting.

Meanwhile, the Birmingham lad was throwing enough leather into Benny's lower anatomy to stop a bull and only by holding desperately did the Baltimore featherweight stay in the fight.

His vaunted left, just another hand with a glove on it, Schwartz was helpless against the boring-in tactics of his rival. Only in the fifth round, the lone stanza credited to him, did the Baltimorean bring the southpaw into play, and it was effective. But Sarron did not give him many opportunities to make use of it.

Dangling a long left hand at his side like a laborer carrying a sledge hammer, Sarron awaited his openings with Job's patience. Once he saw a spot he leaped into action, his blows raining on Schwartz like the roll of drums.

Gentile Is Winner Over Grimes.

Jack Gentile and Buddy Grimes put on one of the best bouts of the show, Gentile winning the decision in six fast rounds. Gentile was too cagey for his younger boy and dropped him twice, in the fourth and fifth rounds, for nine counts. The crowd gave the pair a big hand and they were well deserving of it.

Blond Billy Landers won a technical K. O. over Sam Romano in the fifth round of their scheduled six-round semiwindup when Romano failed to weather a continuous attack in the mid-section.

Stumpy Jacobs, originally billed to meet Vince Serio, flattened Benny Whittler, of Baltimore, after 1 minute 25 seconds of the fourth round in a scheduled six-rounder. Jacobs was too big, powerful and smart for the frail-looking substitute.

Carry Wright stung Jack Quigley with enough rights to the head to take a four-round verdict from the latter in the first bout on the card.

Cuban Sprint Feature Captured by Whisking

Oriental Park, Havana, Cuba, March 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. B. Miller's Whisking, held at even money, splashed his way over a sloppy track to win the featured 6-furlong sprint at Oriental Park today. L. Seay's Crossbones was second, ahead of Mrs. R. Robertson's Jib Boom.

Whisking outbroke his field and, making his own pace all the way, was safe from the bold finish of Crossbones. Jib Boom, which had followed Whisking closely until the stretch, gave way rapidly when Crossbones challenged.

TERRIER, FAVORITE, FINDS HIALEAH PARK MUD TO LIKING

Nose In Takes Second in Feature

Aunt Marsa, $127.90, Easily Scores in First Event.

Traffic Judge Leads Fervid Home in Third Race.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—One of the heaviest rains to soak the local racing strip fell here this morning but the drenching ceased before race time and the sun was trying to peep through the clouds the remainder of the afternoon. Favorite players had to wait until the running of the Cinderella Purse, fifth on the card, to register their first success of the day. Terrier, from the Miami Stable, was made a 1-to-2 shot and won very handily by a length over the Howe Stable's Nose In.

Bannach Lath lost the place by a neck and just got up to take the show in the last stride from Blessed Event. Terrier ran the 7 furlongs in 1:27 2-5 over a sloppy track.

Terrier Steps Clear in Stretch.

A field of six ran fairly well bunched to the head of the stretch. Unsettled, Blessed Event and Nose In took turns leading to that point, with Terrier at their heels. Laverne Fator shot the favorite between horses rounding out of the backstretch. Once clear, Terrier wore down Nose in after entering the stretch.

Traffic Judge led Fervid home in the third by two lengths, while Votan annexed the show position another two spans away. The winner took command before leaving the back stretch and drew clear through the home lane to pay $11.90 for a $2 straight ticket.

Aunt Marsa, a daughter of Purchase, owned by G. H. Strate, found the mud and slop to her liking and gave the crowd a thrill by scoring easily at odds of $127.90 for $2 in the curtain-raiser. Flower Day, the heavy favorite, finished three lengths behind the winner with Miss Axenstein a well-beaten third. Aunt Marsa took the track quickly and although Flower Day was hard ridden in an effort to catch the leader the longshot had no trouble maintaining a safe advantage.

Ondott, which has been knocking on the door in recent starts, made the grade by a nose margin in the fourth event, returning $11.50 for $2. American Smile just failed to get up in time, but saved the place by a length and a half from Salut d'Amour. Bobby Leishman urged the winner to the front in the first quarter mile and saved ground turning for home. American Smile, which forced the pace, tried to bear in but only lost by an inch or so.

Goforth foiled the calculations of the talent in the juvenile dash, registering in easy style by two lengths to pay $16.80.

Hudgins Named Pro At Woodmont Club

Tom Hudgins, of Richmond, Va., has been appointed golf professional at the Woodmont Club to succeed Arthur B. Thorn, it was announced yesterday.

Formerly affiliated with the Glenwood Municipal Course, the Country Club of Virginia, and the Oglethorpe, Ga., links, Hudgins will assume his new duties immediately.

The release of Thorn by the Woodmont Club was a part of the club's retrenchment policy. Joseph D. Kaufman, former president of the club, has said that Thorn and other employes of the club had been retained on the pay roll many weeks after the new budget had made their release imperative.

Seven Flags Have Waved Over Fishing Hamlet, Now Nats' Base.

Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., March 7.—In case any one in the house is interested in this little smelt stronghold, where Washington's Baseball Team is boiling its own fat, here is a fact or two which might prove enlightening.

The first white man to see Biloxi was Pierre le Moyne d'Iberville, French explorer, who landed here in the year 1699. D'Iberville stuck the fleur-de-lis of France in a dead jelly fish and claimed the territory. He made Biloxi capital of "Louisiana Territory," which stretched as far North as Canada. It was not until two or three years later that New Orleans was established.

Biloxi, roughly, means "The First People' 'in Sioux.

Seven Flags Have Waved Over City.

Seven flags have waved over this fishing hamlet, the French, Spanish, English, Confederate States, United States, Mississippi State and Mississippi Magnolia. The city is named after the Indian tribe D'Iberville found here. The Biloxis were a sort of offshoot from the Sioux family, and exceptionally good hunters. About a year ago a modern steam shovel was nosing around inquisitively in a building excavation here and uncovered an Indian graveyard. The overjoyed secretary of the local chamber of commerce, Tony Ragusin, rushed avidly to the scene, planning a raft of publicity for the town and gayly waved a couple of bones that once were the boney girders of some Indian's head. Two days later, Ragusin was in the hospital with mastoid trouble, which probably served him right.

The great British fleet of 1812 anchored off Biloxi prior to the attack on New Orleans. The crews of the boats were fed by slaughtering Biloxi cattle.

Jeff Davis Spent Last Days in Biloxi.

Jeff Davis lived his last days down here at "Beauvoir," now a Confederate Soldiers Home. The town lighthouse is 84 years old and is still in service. For 60 years it was "manned" by a woman. Strangely enough, when Lincoln was assassinated, it was painted black for several months.

The hamlet seems prouder of its shrimp-canning industry than its rich history, but perhaps that is the old human failing of appreciation of something material in preference to something nebular. The shopkeepers are very friendly, and don't know anything about the sales tax under which they operate. The shrimping business is attended largely by ladies and gents from the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. They have their own little community, their own churches, speakeasies and occasionally break out with a native dance in a hall called the Gottsblatt und damuruschund.

Once Haven of Rum-Running Fleet.

Up until the time the Government decided to ebablish a Coast Guard station here, the village was one of the principal landing places for an enterprising and very honest rum row, 12 miles out in the gulf. Liquor of a thousand varieties and prices was brought from Nassau, Cuba, even St. Pierre-Miquelon and France, and shuttled in from the row by fast little cruisers. The authorities never bothered them much. At least they knew that the burghers were drinking mild and pure beverages, not half so injurious as a bottle of strawberry pop.

But now that is all changed. The citizenry has had to go back to the fierce hybrid "cawn" brewed in backhill vats, aged a week or two in charcoal vats and served cinders and all. A city official tells me that it is 75 per cent corn mash and 25 per cent rye mash and very good.

Well, it may be 75 per cent corn and 25 per cent rye, but—

JUDSON SEEN MATCH FOR LONDOS

Mat Title Challenger Has Many Admirers Here.

DEEMPHASIZING the current depression will be the self-appointed task taken over by Champion Jim Londos at the Washington Auditorium tomorrow night.

Still a record-breaking "draw" despite the reigning epidemic of bank holidays, Londos meets Frank Judson, one of the outstanding contenders for his title.

All indications yesterday pointed to a near sell-out as Matchmaker Joe Turner and his confederates bustled through another busy advance sale at their Hotel Annapolis office.

Londos Bouts Pack Houses.

While sports generally have suffered through the financial lapse, Londos is reported to have attracted no fewer than seven capacity houses during the past several weeks. Only last week he paired off with Joe Stecher to better than $29,000 in Chicago.

Although the Greek Adonis unquestionably is the ranking attraction, Judson himself is the magnet attracting many Washingtonians. A number of upsets registered locally have elevated fearless Frank to the peak of popularity here.

Ably backing up the championship spectacle will be the pitting of another title claimant, John Pesek, against ponderous Jim Clinstock.

Scheduled 30 minutes will be still another crop of big timers. Hans Steinke will endeavor to outmuscle John Maxos; Abie Coleman ties up with Rudy Dusek, and brother Ernie Dusek engages Paul Jones.

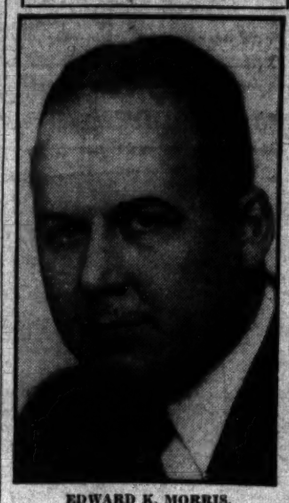
G. W. Coach



EDWARD K. MORRIS.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 7 (U. P.).—Manager Bill Killefer of the St. Louis Browns today sent a squad of nine players through the first workout of the season.

Lloyd Brown, the southpaw pitcher secured in the trade with Washington last winter, signed his contract and limbered up. Others who participated in the practice were Sam Gray, Robert Cooney, Jack Knott, Rolland Stiles, pitchers; Muddy Ruel and Jack Crouch, catchers; Jimmy Levey, short stop, and Bruce Campbell, right fielder.

Pitcher Dick Coffman was at the park, but was not permitted to take part in the workout because he has not signed his contract. Wallace Hebert, southpaw pitcher, failed to report. Bennie Bengough, catcher, was expected tomorrow. He is motoring from Niagara Falls with his bride.

Jablonowski Shows Yanks Curve Ball.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—The curve ball has made its appearance in the camp of the New York Yankees.

Pete Jablonowski, former Red Sox pitcher, brought in from the Newark "farm" for a trial this spring, had the boys jumping away from the plate today with a variety of stuff, and Johnny Allen, the recruit sensation of the 1932 campaign, was putting plenty on every pitch in today's drill.

The regulars report to Manager Joe McCarthy tomorrow and Babe Ruth, although unsigned, will be in uniform for the first time this year.

Harder Ill at Camp Of Tribe.

New Orleans, March 7 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians were confronted with more preseason pitching trouble today when Mel Harder went on the sick list for at least a week. Two other pitching mainstays, Wesley Ferrell and Willis Hudlin, still are to be signed.

Harder was stricken with a throat infection which doctors defined as a serious, but not dangerous, thyroid condition.

Red Sox Halted By Rain.

Sarasota, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—Rain held the Boston Red Sox workout to a single session today. Manager Marty McManus again divided his squad into veteran and rookie groups. Most of his efforts were centered on his experienced pitchers, who appear to be rounding into shape.

Harris Raves Over Rowe.

San Antonio, Tex., March 7 (A.P.). Manager Bucky Harris of the Tigers today waxed enthusiastic over the initial training performance of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, lanky Texas Leaguer, who recently joined the Tiger hurlers.

So impressed with the schoolboy's showing was the Tiger boss that he said: "I'm going to start him in the first series we play in Detroit. If he is beaten—I'll send him right back again. And if he's beaten again—I'll send him back in again."

Mackmen to Practice Sliding.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7 (A.P.).—For the first time in 25 years, the Philadelphia Athletics are going to use a sliding pit as part of their spring training exercises.

The pit was constructed at Terry Field today at the request of the young players. Beginning tomorrow the A's are to go through a drill of learning the art of throwing themselves into the bags. They will be taught the hook slide, the fadeaway and the other tricks that make for base-running success.

Al Simmons Reports To Chisox.

Pasadena, Calif., March 7 (A.P.).—Al Simmons, the man who is expected to be the difference between a first division berth for the Chicago White Sox or one in the lower regions of the American League, reached camp today, but too late to do anything except greet and become acquainted with his new mates. He will go on display for the first time tomorrow.

BLADES COLUMBUS PILOT.

Columbus, Ohio, March 7 (A.P.).—Ray Blades will manage the Columbus American Association Baseball Club next season, it was announced today. Blades, an outfielder, was with the St. Louis Nationals last season. He was sent to the Red Birds by the Cardinals last winter.

E. K. MORRIS TO COACH G. W. NINE

Colonials to Revive Sport, Play Games Under Lights.

EDWARD K. MORRIS, well-known Washington business man, yesterday was named head coach of the George Washington University baseball team, which is being reorganized after a lapse of several years. The team will play all games under the arc-lights at Griffith Stadium.

Morris, a veteran coach and former player, has called a meeting of all candidates for tonight at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium. He plans to inaugurate practice immediately.

A graduate of Williams College, where he played shortstop on the varsity team, Morris has been actively identified with the game for the last 17 years. He left school to enlist in the Naval Aviation Corps during the war, returning to receive his degree in 1919.

Quit Coaching to Play Pro Ball.

Following graduation, he coached for four years at the Berkshire School for boys located in Sheffield, Mass. At the expiration of his contract, he turned to pro ball and played with numerous teams throughout New York and Massachusetts.

In 1921, he moved to this city, becoming identified with the Federal Storage Co., which he now heads. For several years pressure of business forced him to sever all connections with the game. But he remained an ardent rooter and last year organized a team bearing his firm's name to compete in the Capital City League, sponsored by The Post.

A schedule is being arranged by Max Farrington, assistant to Athletic Director Pixlee, which will include 12 games with college teams and a three-game series with the Quantico Marines.

Admission to the games will be 25 cents, but a season ticket, good for 10 games, will be sold for $2.00. Added attractions such as amateur boxing matches, wrestling and shows, will be offered.

State Title Game Today For Hyattsville High

Hyattsville High School's basket ball team, Prince Georges County champion, makes its debut in the annual tournament for the Maryland State high school title this afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, engaging Franklin High, of Reisterstown, Baltimore County title holder, at the University of Maryland, College Park. The tourney is sponsored by the Playground Athletic League of Maryland.

It will be the second game of the preliminary round in the Western Shore competition, Annapolis High, Anne Arundel County standard bearer, having drubbed Solomons, representing Calvert County, in the first match.

The winner of the Hyattsville-Franklin game will engage Annapolis High Saturday at the University of Maryland in a first-round contest.

Hyattsville, that was eliminated in the opening game in last year's tourney by Takoma-Silver Spring High, Montgomery County finalist, has high hopes of going far this year. The winner in the Western Shore competition will come to grips with the victor in the Eastern Shore play for the State title. Eastern Shore competition begins Monday.

Southeast Tourney Play Starts Tonight

Southeast Community Center's second annual basket ball tournament will open tonight with two games at Hine Junior High School, Seventh and C streets southeast.

Tonight the Marions play the Anacostia Business Men at 8 o'clock, which will be followed by a game between Congress Heights and Sigma Phi Lambda at 9 o'clock.

The Buckeys will tangle with Miller Furniture Co. in the lone game scheduled tomorrow night, while Friday night the Whirlwinds hook up with the Naval Reserves at 8 o'clock and Terry's Servicemen play the Marines an hour later.

Thirteen teams are entered in the tournament.

Reformed Baseball Poet Discards Rhyme and Uses Logic for Post's Contest

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

D. C. CRAIN, the big cup and plaque man of the Nation's Capital, who used to amuse himself several years back by writing baseball yarns with rhythm, a la Hank Longfellow, has completely reformed and is now confining his efforts to the better things in life, such as trying to pick the "All-Griffith" team in The Post's baseball contest.

And Mr. Crain really knows his baseball. He confesses that he has been a baseball addict since the year 1 B. C. (before the contest) and confidently asserts that, if his selections do not win the eight box seats to the Nats' opening game here, then Griffith is wrong and not he.

Here's the collection of best Nats since 1912 as Mr. Crain dopes things out: Judge, first; Harris, second; Foster, third; Cronin, short; Goslin, left; Milan, center; Rice, right; Johnson, Hughes, Marberry and Crowder, pitchers, and Ruel and Ainsmith, catchers.

Cites Promotion of Four as Managers.

While being sure that all of those he names will be named by Griffith, Mr. Crain is particularly confident in the cases of Harris, Cronin Milan and Johnson. "You see, it was on account of their brilliant work that Griffith advanced this quartet to the managership," he explains, "and it is a cinch that he will confirm these previous acts of his by giving them berths on the team. Feeling this way, the only guessing I had to do was with respect to shortstop, for there were George McBride and Donie Bush advanced in the same manner, but the latter was about through when he came to Washington, while Cronin's hitting gives him a big edge over McBride, even granting—which I don't—that McBride was a better fielder."

Mr. Crain admits that he is a great admirer of Ossie Bluege personally, but he says this is a time when a fellow should play no favorites; hence his selection of Foster as the third-sacker. "I've seen Foster play many a game and I rate him just about as good a fielder as Bluege. He didn't have Bluege's snap-throw, but he got his men just the same. And, considering that Foster was generally rated in the same class as Willie Keeler as a place-hitter, this gives him quite an edge over Bluege as I see things," he said.

The only other explanation Mr. Crain thought necessary was an alibi for the selection of "Long Tom" Hughes among the pitchers. "He was really a great pitcher and had one of the fastest-breaking curves I ever saw," he said. "As to the others, it seems to me they automatically deserve to be named. Aside from Johnson's record, Ty Cobb once told me that Walter was the only pitcher he ever faced who could fool him on speed alone. Marberry's relief work was outstanding during the Nats' pennant years of '24 and '25, while Crowder has developed into one of the best flingers in the game."

Maybe you do not agree with Mr. Crain. Let's have your selection, and make it snappy, for the contest closes on March 15. Even if Mr. Crain wins first prize—and no one but himself is sure he will—more box seats are offered for second and third. Maybe you could find a use for them.

Grid Coach to Speak To Wesleyan Alumni

A. J. (Swede) Oberlander, head football coach at Wesleyan University, Mass., and former half back at Dartmouth University, where he gained renown as a forward passer and was named on the 1926 All-American eleven, will address the Wesleyan Alumni banquet at the University Club tomorrow evening.

Oberlander has enjoyed unusual success since coming to Wesleyan in 1930 after serving as assistant coach at Ohio State. Last season he lost only one game in eight, bowing to Amherst by a close score. Dr. James L. McConaughy, president of Wesleyan, will be the other guest of honor and will address the gathering also.

GRAIN GROUPS MOVE TO RESTORE MARKET

Plans Pushed for Chicago Trade Board Reopening; Winnipeg Down.

Chicago, March 7 (A.P.).—Preliminary steps to put the Nation's grain business quickly back on a normal basis were taken today, with Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Washington cooperating.

At the instance of Henry Morgenthau, the newly appointed chairman of the Federal Farm Board, a delegation headed by Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, went to Washington this afternoon for a conference tomorrow in regard to reopening of grain exchanges here and at other leading centers.

Notice already given from the Treasury Department at Washington that banks could make payments on shipments of perishable products was generally construed here as applying to grain.

Winnipeg Sales Recede.

Simultaneously, wheat trading at Winnipeg today receded to much smaller size compared to the large proportions reached since grain dealings in Chicago and other domestic points were stopped by enforcement of United States bank holidays. Winnipeg prices tumbled 2 cents a bushel at one stage today largely as a result of speculative profit-taking.

With even restricted trading in immediate delivery grain halted tonight, business on the Board of Trade here is now completely at a standstill, a condition unprecedented in Chicago heretofore, not barring war-times.

Board of trade members, however, contend that the tradition of never having closed the Chicago Exchange's doors on any regular market day still holds good. The present suspension is regarded by the members as a legal holiday the same as Thanksgiving, Christmas and the Fourth of July.

Keynote of Reopening.

The keynote for reopening of the grain exchanges is announcement by millers that disposal of bread material would have to be suspended unless there could be assurance of an open market to hedge sales of flour against purchases of wheat. A bulletin from the Millers National Federation made public today said: "Under existing uncertainties, it is hazardous in the extreme for millers to name prices on their product because of the impossibility of protecting themselves against loss."

A proposal has been made whereby the United States Grain Stabilization Corporation's holdings of 30,931,000 bushels of May delivery wheat contracts would be liquidated to mills as flour sales are effected.

So completely is grain traffic tied up at present that the aggregate of all cereals arriving in Chicago today was but 30 cars, most of it corn and including not a single bushel of wheat.

Winnipeg, March 7 (A.P.).—Pounded by profit-takers anxious to cash in on profits of the past two days, wheat futures took a beating on the Winnipeg grain market today. Spirited rallies, which brought values within ¼ cent of the previous close enlivened trading, but the finish was ⅞ to 1 cent lower.

May delivery closed at 51¾, July 52¾ and October at 54 cents.

Today's session was disappointing following the bullish enthusiasm displayed Saturday and Monday. Chicago traders today contributed only a handful of buying orders compared to the avalanche they unloaded yesterday.

Values were below the previous close right from the start. Only near the finish did futures, under a surge of buying which soon died, approach yesterday's quotations. Offerings were plentiful throughout, composed mostly of hedging and profit-taking sales.

Chicago, March 7 (A.P.).—The Chicago Live Stock Exchange today rescinded yesterday's order announcing that the exchange would close at 3 p. m. today, and announced that business would continue as usual. The announcement was made by the Government Bureau of Economics at noon.

The text of the order follows:

"In view of the developments which have arisen and which would indicate the resumption of facilities for handling the movement of food and food products, including cattle, swine and sheep, the Chicago Live Stock Exchange has rescinded its action of March 6, 1933, closing the Chicago live stock market, and the market will remain open as usual for the conduct of business, subject to the same conditions of sale in vogue since the issuance of the President's proclamation."

Refiners generally were quoting 3.90 cents on refined for prompt and 30-day shipment, but all orders were subject to confirmation. A continued good inquiry was reported.

COFFEE—Brazilian coffee prices have advanced ½ to 1 cent per pound since Friday on moderate buying by roasters, with sellers reserved. Santos 4s are quoted at 9½ to 10 cents and Rio 7s at 8½ cents. A good demand for cost and freight coffee developed on Monday owing to the fact that Brazilian offerings, while about 20 points higher, were relatively cheaper than local spot quotations. London—Prices on the Stock Exchange had a good undertone at the close after moderate business. American securities in a few instances figured in the higher quotations but Far Eastern issues and German bonds were the firm features. There was no selling pressure anywhere.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse continued firm and active today. Some issues advanced three points during the session and the closing showed a reaction of about a point below the best level of the day on realizations.

Daily Crude Oil Production Increases 192,000 Barrels

(Associated Press.)

Production of crude petroleum in the United States in January totaled 63,998,000 barrels, or a daily average of 2,064,000 barrels, an increase of 192,000 barrels over the daily average of the previous month.

The daily average, however, was 94,000 barrels less than the daily average in January a year ago. The daily production of motor fuel oil in January was 1,000,000 barrels, a decrease of 24,000 barrels from December. The indicated domestic demand for motor fuel totaled 26,442,000 barrels, a daily average of 853,000 barrels.

Stocks of motor fuel continued to increase, but at a lower rate than a year ago and in December, 1932. Motor fuel stocks on January 31 totaled 55,910,000 barrels, of which 3,198,000 barrels was natural gasoline.

The Commerce Department in announcing the total said refinery demand for crude in January was virtually the same as in December. Withdrawals from crude stocks were continued and the net decline in January amounted to 3,367,000 barrels.

Total stocks of all oils also declined, the net withdrawal in January amounting to 4,134,000 barrels. The major part of this decline, the department said, was recorded in crude oil stocks.

The report said production in the east Texas field totaled 10,447,000 barrels, or a daily average of 337,000 barrels. This was nearly double the December output. The number of wells completed in the east Texas field declined from 348 in December to 283 in January. Production at Conroe, the active field in the Texas Gulf Coast, remained practically unchanged.

CANADA SECURITIES CONTINUE ADVANCES

Trading on Exchanges at Montreal and Toronto Is Moderate.

Montreal, March 7 (A.P.).—Stocks continued to advance in the late trading on the local stock exchange today, ending the session with gains ranging from fractions to nearly 3 points in the case of Consolidated Smelters. Volume was not heavy. There were some signs of profit taking in the last half hour.

Smelters moved up sharply to 62¾, where it stood 2¾ points higher. This brought its gain in two days to nearly 7 points. Canadian Pacific advanced to 11½, but fell back toward the close to 11⅛, where it was unchanged. International Nickel was fairly active and finished ¼ higher at 9¼. Brazilian closed slightly below its best level of the day at 8½, up ⅞.

Farm implement shares continued firm, following the better tone in wheat at Winnipeg. Massey Harris gained ½ and Cockshutt Plow ¼. Fractional advances were scored by Steel of Canada, Hollinger, B. C. Power "B," McColl, National Steel Car and National Breweries.

Tooke Bros. preferred made its first appearance in two years at 15, down 50 points. Penmans lost 4, Dominion Bridge ½. Bank Montreal ½, a new low; Sherwin Williams, 1, Shawinigan ¼ and Dominion Steel & Coal "B" a fraction.

Toronto, March 7 (A.P.).—While trading tapered off this afternoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange the price structure held firmly on the whole, very scattered recessions for the day's top prices appearing. Buying of Imperial Oil and International continued the feature of the afternoon session and both closed at new tops for the week.

The only explanation for the pick-up in prices heard locally was the gains registered on the London market today for nickel and United States market leaders, such as United States Steel.

While enjoying heavy turnover, Imperial Oil advanced only ¼ and British-American and International Pete did no more than hold their positions. Supertest was off a little. Imperial closed at 8½.

The food stocks were well represented in the trading and advances predominated. Dominion Stores and Consolidated Bakeries were up, while Westons and the Loblaw issues were steady.

Most of the utilities held to the strong side, gains of 1 to 3 appearing in Consumers Gas and Bell Telephone and Shawinigan was down a fraction.

The agricultural implement shares had a good day on the strength of improved grain markets. Massey Harris lost some of the day's advance, but closed higher at 3½, while Cockshutt Plow at 4¾ was up a quarter point.

Nickel, the center of interest in the interlisted group, gained ⅜ to 9¼, with the buying heavy. Brazilian gained ¼, Canadian Pacific ¼ and Ford a fraction. Trading in Canadian Pacific was light. Bank shares were fairly active and strong, Toronto gaining 5 points.

Banks Loosen Cash Strings As Rulings Clear Confusion

Trading Confined Largely to Commodities for Immediate Deliveries; Advances of Pound Against Dollars Dropped in Canada and England.

New York, March 7 (A.P.).—With banks loosening their purse strings a little in most of larger financial centers of America today, tension relaxed somewhat on the third day of the Nation's bank holiday.

Considerable confusion existed among banks in New York, Chicago and other cities, as to the immediate procedure which should be followed in availing themselves of Treasury Secretary Woodin's rulings allowing them to resume restricted banking activity, to permit cashing of payroll checks and financing the movement of foodstuffs and necessities.

Nevertheless, considerable currency was paid out in many cities. In New York, the situation was confused for a time by Gov. Lehman's extension of the State holiday through Thursday, and the Chase National Bank, after opening, decided to close in keeping with the governor's mandate, but the governor later made it clear that Secretary Woodin's ruling took precedence.

The ideas of issuing scrip or clearing house certificates to meet the present emergency were said to be undergoing revision in some banking quarters, where it was felt that a rapid return to a normal currency basis was more desirable, and pointed out that the Federal Reserve System, under emergency provisions of the Federal Reserve act, could issue currency in any amount, meeting virtually any possible demand.

Business in domestic markets was limited to dealings in commodities for immediate delivery, while futures markets remained closed. Markets abroad were mixed, as world finance was still confused by the absence of quotations in dollars.

It was notable, however, that the idea of sharp advances in the pound sterling and Canadian dollars against American dollars appeared to have been dropped in England and Canada, for gold mining shares again strengthened in their markets, after yesterday's setback.

Such staples as hogs and cotton for immediate delivery advanced in domestic dealings, with hogs particularly strong, but speculative ideas of price inflation in this country seemed hazier, although the belief persisted in many quarters in Wall street that resumption of trading on American exchanges would be marked by higher prices.

There was too little trading in American securities in London and Montreal to provide any real clue to their trend, although American issues held unchanged to a little higher. Of course, without any means of translating sterling and Canadian dollar prices into American dollars, those prices were valueless as a guide to values for the same securities here.

In some international banking quarters, it was understood that important financial interests in England and Canada would vigorously seek to prevent any sharp rise in their currencies against the dollar, and such unofficial quotations as were reported in Wall Street on pounds sterling and Canadian dollars were far below some of the figures mentioned yesterday.

Hog prices advanced rather sharply at Chicago, but with banks permitted to release funds for the movement of food stuffs, and the Chicago Live Stock market rescinding its decision to close, ample supplies of meats were assured.

Cotton, which had slumped at Liverpool yesterday, reflecting expectations of a rise in sterling exchange, advanced today, when, it appeared that measures would be take nto keep sterling from rising sufficiently to interfere with export business.

Wheat, after advancing nearly 4 cents in the past two sessions, reacted a cent at Winnipeg. Traders were quick to take profits, when it was realized that its upswing was carrying it out of line with Argentine and Australian prices.

A delegation from the Chicago Board of Trade started for Washington to consider resumption of dealings in grain futures, but officials of the New York Stock Exchange and other security markets appeared to be marking time, pending clarification of the banking situation, before considering resumption of trading.

In the meantime, the Unlisted Security Dealers Association joined with the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges in forbidding its members to participate in any "bootleg" market in securities.

$222,035,900 PAID BY EQUITABLE LIFE

Sum Goes to Policyholders as Dividends Reach $41,554,566.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

In connection with the financial statement of Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States made public today, it is of interest to know, according to David S. Bethune, local agency manager for the society, that since 1927, when Thomas I. Parkinson became its president, its assets have increased from a little less than $90,000,000 at that time to nearly $1,500,000,000 at the present.

In this sixth year of Mr. Parkinson's administration, the society's assets have increased two-thirds as much as in the 68 years preceding it. Mr. Bethune explains that the credit for this increase in assets is due in part to the very strict laws of New York governing investment of assets of life insurance companies incorporated under the State's laws, guaranteeing to policyholders of these companies that their funds at no time will be speculated with.

The society's financial statement this year shows an increase in assets over 1931, of $71,464,239. During 1932, $222,035,900.83 was paid to policyholders and there is apportioned to dividends to be paid in 1933, $41,554,566.

"But the crux of the whole situation which gives that guarantee of security today," Mr. Bethune reminds, "is to be seen in the fact that the society's excess of receipts over disbursements during the very trying year just passed was $69,573,043.15. Here, we have a financial institution whose obligations must mature in an orderly manner and, furthermore, one whose obligations are always less than its current cash income. Any institution or individual constantly in the position of having more cash coming in than it has obligations to meet is in a marvelous position. The society has no enforced sale of perfectly good securities but, on the other hand, is in a position to take advantage of the bargains in good securities which other institutions are compelled to dispose of."

SPOT COTTON SALES NARROWED IN SOUTH

Prices Left Open Until Futures Are Resumed; Liverpool Higher.

New York, March 7 (A.P.).—In the absence of hedging facilities, reports reaching here from the South today again indicated that busines in spot cotton was drastically restricted.

Mills were said to be buying a little cotton but this was believed to have been chiefly on sellers' call, leaving the price open until trading in futures is resumed. Local dealers said that while some efforts were being made to trade in spot cotton at a wide variation in prices—ranging from about 25 points over those of last Friday to some extreme prices of 8 cents or over—very little cotton was being moved. No official reports were received from the Southern spot markets either with reference to quotations or sales.

Cable advices from Liverpool reported a more cheerful feeling, with prices higher on trade and Bombay buying with offerings light. Prices at the close there were very steady at net advances of 16 to 17 English points, May selling at 4.71 pence and closing at 4.70 pence. Some traders thought the advance in Liverpool might have reflected a scaling down of views as to probable exchange rates there when dealings are resumed.

The active demand for print cloths in the domestic goods market continued at the advance in prices. Manchester cables, however, said the cloth market there was slow and unsettled owing to the uncertainty of prices. India cotton futures at Bombay were unchanged to 2 rupees lower, while the Havre market closed at a net advance of 10 to 12 points and the futures market for Egyptian cotton in Alexandria was 4 to 15 points higher.

According to the International Federation Statistics, world's consumption of American lint cotton for the half year ended January 31 amounted to 6,745,000 bales, compared with 6,302,000 for the half year ended July 31, and the world's mill consumption of all kinds amounted to 11,887,000 bales, regardless of weight, against 10,792,000 for the same period last year.

13,200 Associated Employees Insured for $53,651,000

MORE than 13,000 Associated employees have their lives insured for a total of $53,651,000 under the Associated Employees Insurance Plan.

Since the plan has been in effect, $735,500 in death and disability benefits has been paid. By far the greater portion of the payments represents assistance which the families of deceased or disabled employees would otherwise have lacked entirely.

Assurance of prompt and substantial aid is responsible for the effect on employees noted by an executive of one Associated company upon the settlement of a claim:

We received the draft in the amount of $4,000, and words almost fail me to express the good effect that it had on our entire organization to find that the insurance was paid promptly and with so little red tape.

Contented workers are the best workers. It adds to an employee's sense of security to realize that in event of death or disability, his insurance will provide for his family.

More than 90% of Associated Employees Insured

Each subscribing employee receives an ordinary life insurance policy equal approximately to his annual earnings. He also receives a certificate of participation in a group policy for a similar amount. He is thus insured for an amount equal to twice his annual pay. Subscription by employees was voluntary. Representatives of insurance companies doubted that 75% would participate. More than 90% subscribed.

One insurance magazine described the Associated Employees Insurance Plan as "an achievement unparalleled in all the pages of insurance history." However that may be, the plan has helped meet a widespread need for insurance among Associated employees, and to that extent has made them better employees. Better employees means better service for the public.

COMMENDATION

New York Times—
A plan for employee insurance, unique in the annals of American industry, and including the largest wholesale underwriting of ordinary life insurance ever accomplished in a single attempt.

Weekly Underwriter—
The truly remarkable part of the whole affair is that this represents a voluntary participation in the plan of more than 90% of all Associated employees.

Eastern Underwriter—
Four of the large life insurance companies have underwritten one of the most comprehensive and liberal insurance plans yet devised.

Industrial Relations—
The ordinary life idea on a non-medical basis up to the age of 56 is absolutely new applied in this way . . . Adoption of the plan follows more than four years of organization work and the smoothing out of numberless details.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

New York, March 7.—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

An ermine bedecked dowager was tripping along Madison avenue leading one of those poodles about as big as a powder puff. Encountering a friend she hesitated a moment and was overheard to say: "I'm just taking Fluff out for a constitutional. You know, Fluff is such a little darling that he just must have his oxygen four times a day."

It is estimated that Noel Coward is drawing nearly $5,000 a week in salary and royalties from his play, "Design for Living."

Whatever became a Pola Negri? She was seen around the night clubs practically every evening a few months ago, but lately one doesn't hear of her.

An Eerie Trip.

For an eerie ride, one should motor up the Hudson through Sleepy Hollow. One can understand why it inspired Washington Irving to write his ghostly tale of Ichabod Crane and the headless horseman. It gets extremely dark in the valley and when thick fogs roll up from the river the region seems an apt gathering place for phantasms.

Strolling into a cheap, all night restaurant on Eighth avenue late the other evening, I was greeted by a sleepy, grumpy waiter. He seemed annoyed to be aroused and showed little interest in whether I ordered or not. Without a word, he pushed my order across the counter and shuffled back to the chair in the corner where he had been napping.

After such service, it struck me as rather whimsical that on the wall should be posted a sign which read: "To waiters: When you meet your customer, say, have you ordered, sir? And when you have returned his check, say, thank you, sir. Thank you, sir, is a manly statement. Saying it proudly marks you as a gentleman and tends to remove any annoyance which quick service might cause."

They Won't Separate.

Lynn Fontanne thinks that "absence makes the heart grow fonder" is bunk. She says one of the chief reasons her own marriage to Alfred Lunt has been so successful is the fact that they are never separated. Neither one will sign a contract which would send them to different cities.

Rosalind Fuller is abandoning Broadway for her London home. She was Juliet to John Barrymore's Romeo.

Ellin Mackay Berlin has turned fiction writer.

Katharine Brush's new work studio will be a circular room, and her desk will be in the form of a semicircle.

The lowest number of shows ever on Broadway was a total of one. That was during the actors' strike in 1919 when every attraction in town was closed with the exception of the Theater Guild play, "John Ferguson." It made the Guild financially independent.

$18,000,000 Action Against Ford Lost

Suit on Windshield Infringement Too Late, Judge Rules.

Pittsburgh, March 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. May Kable Banker, executrix of the estate of her husband, Arthur L. Banker, today lost her suit for $18,000,000 against the Ford Motor Co. for alleged infringements on a windshield patent.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court ruled that she is not entitled to recover for the reason that filing of the suit was delayed for several years. Banker's patent expired in 1928 and the suit was brought in 1931.

The court pointed out that Banker knew of the defendant's use of the alleged infringed patent prior to 1915 and its continued use up to the time action was brought.

230 in Trucks Migrate To Government Lands

Clinton, Ark., March 7 (A.P.).—A truck caravan of 230 persons from Sioux City, Iowa, making their way to 25,000 acres of unappropriated Government land in Van Buren County for homesteading purposes, has passed through here in the last three days.

One hundred and nine of the immigrants stayed here last night. They said trucks for their transportation were furnished by the Sioux City Chamber of Commerce.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

YOU can travel all through Holland and never see a Dutch windmill as large as the one that stands in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. It was built at a cost of $20,000. The arms, made of Oregon pine, measure 57 feet from center to tip—a total wingspread of 114 feet. Besides its decorative value, the pump is useful in pumping water. It has a capacity of 40,000 gallons an hour.

Another smaller Dutch windmill is also located in the park.

• • • •

Although cabbage and radish plants have been successfully crossed in a Russian institute and the progeny is productive, no one need look forward to eating this strange plant in a vegetable salad. According to the very frank statement of Dr. G. D. Karpechenko, of the Institute of Applied Botany, Detskoe Selo, U. S. S. R., who produced the strange plant, it has no practical value. The value is simply as an experiment in genetics.

Plants to the fifth generation have grown from the first hybrid, one of them now located at Cornell University. The layman may call it "rabbage," "cabish," or any other hybrid name, but the scientific name is raphano-brassica, after the parental stock.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PORTRAIT OF PANICKY AMERICAN.

("The only thing we have to fear is fear itself — nameless, unreasonable, unjustified terror, which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance."—President Roosevelt.)

O, PULL the shutters, bar the door—
And stand where I can see!
For I'm beset by fears galore
About the state of me;
I heard a rumor yesterday
That someone stole the mint—
And I'll be stolen, too, they say,
Unless I take the hint.

I had a dream the other night
The White House wasn't there;
The Capitol had taken flight
Or vanished into air!,
The old Potomac was no more—
I saw it disappear;
Some fellows had just seized it for
A little souvenir!

I heard a fellow say, alack!
The whole United States
Had slipped into an open crack
And drowned in racing skates;
They tell me there is not a sign
Of where the country sank;
O, sooth this fever'd brow of mine—
I'm feeling very rank.
A locust plague is on the land
And nothing longer grows;
The acres green have turned to sand—
(I'm told by one who knows);
Our verdant hills are barren clay,
Our streams no longer flow;
They dried Niagara Falls today—
My barber told me so!

O, hold me tightly! Pat my wrist!
I hear the bogeyman
Is working with a great big list
Of blessings he will ban;
The orchards will no longer bloom,
The ground produce no crops;
The Nation's headed for its doom—
I got it from some cops.

They're shutting off the sunshine soon
And putting out the stars;
They'll soon dissolve, I hear, the moon,
And Venus, Saturn, Mars;
Our food supply has slipped away—
The country's bleak and bare;
I got it from a friend today:
We'll soon be short of air!

O, gosh! I'm all a-tremble and
The goose-flesh pimples spread;
Cling tightly to my pale, white hand
And look beneath the bed!
Go lock the door and douse the glim
And say no word of cheer—
I fear my life would be too grim
Were there no fears to fear!

Two Former Soldiers Injured in Car Crash

Two former soldiers were injured yesterday when their car overturned on the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville.

The injured, who were taken to Walter Reed Hospital, are Frank Fee, the driver, of 1018 Carroll avenue northwest, broken collarbone and ribs, and David A. Gunther, of Baltimore, Md., lacerations over the right eye.

Reserves Sent to Help Police; Crowd Victims

Police reserves had to be sent to the rescue of Policemen Lester Parks and C. H. Gould, of the Second Precinct, who were attacked late yesterday by a group of colored persons at Seventh and N streets northwest.

The policemen were attempting to halt a fight, when the fighters and bystanders turned on them. In the melee Parks was cut on the hand and Gould was thrown on a street car track and narrowly escaped being struck by a car.

Wife of House Member Leaves Bag in Taxicab

A $190 bedroom clock and a number of personal effects contained in a train bag were lost Sunday by Mrs. Theresa Brunner, wife of Representative William F. Brunner, of New York, police reported yesterday.

Mrs. Brunner told police she left the bag in a taxicab while en route from the Shoreham Hotel to a downtown restaurant Sunday, before taking a train to New York.

COUZENS ASSIGNED TO SENATE DISTRICT COMMITTEE PLACE

Addition of Former Detroit Mayor Regarded as Strong Move.

The Senate District Committee was strengthened yesterday by the assignment of Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, former mayor of Detroit, and an expert on municipal affairs, to complete its Republican membership.

Selection of Senator Couzens by the Republican Committee on Committees, fills a vacancy that has continued since the withdrawal of Senator Henrik Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota. It was learned that Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), New Jersey, also asked to be relieved of District Committee membership, but his request was turned down.

King Likely Chairman.

Yesterday's Republican committee realignment was preliminary to Democratic committee shifts and assignment of chairmanships to be made today or tomorrow.

When this is done, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, probably will be designated Senate District Committee chairman.

Senator Couzens, who for three years prior to coming to the Senate, was mayor of Detroit, and before that was police and street railway commissioner, declined last night to comment on local issues until he has had an opportunity to familiarize himself with matters pending before the committee.

To Study Local Taxes.

He said he intends to study particularly the matter of local taxation, which Senator Kind insists may be paramount this session.

On the request of Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, the Republican Committee on Committees retired the Pennsylvania Senator from the Senate Appropriations Committee. This automatically removes him from the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee, of which he was a member. Senator Davis will continue as a member of the Senate District Committee.

Job Seekers Told To See Committee

Mrs. Norton's Office Is Flooded With Scores of Democrats.

Scores of local Democrats besieging the office of Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee yesterday were being referred by Washington's "mayor" to the District Democratic national committee.

Ranging from applicants for low-salaried clerical positions to candidates for District Commissioners, job seekers since March 4, and for weeks prior, have passed through Representative Norton's office in a continuous stream.

Other influential members of the House District Committee also have had their hands full with job seekers, including Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia.

Accidental Is Verdict In Lentz Child's Death

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death following an inquest into the collision of an Emergency Hospital ambulance and an automobile February 27 at Fourteenth and E streets northwest, in which 3-year-old Oren Lentz, jr., was fatally injured and six other persons hurt.

The verdict of the jury, presided over by Acting Corner A. Magruder MacDonald and Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, freed the child's father, driver of the car in which the child was riding, and Clarence Montgomery, 28, colored, driver of the ambulance.

Coach Company Slashes Bus Fares for Ten Days

As a convenience to patrons during the bank holiday, the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. last night announced a reduction in fares from 15 to 10 cents on runs from Washington to Glebe road, from Glebe road and Wilson boulevard and from Glebe road and Pershing drive, all in nearby Virginia.

These rates are to be effective for 10 days.

ROOSEVELT'S VIEW RULED OUT AT TRIAL

Does Not Affect Case of 35 Seized During Red Parade, Police Judge Holds.

President Roosevelt's attitude on the arrest of 35 members of a parade for jobless relief which was broken up with police clubs Monday was ruled out of their trial yesterday in Police Court, where they are answering charges of parading without a permit.

David Leninson, Philadelphia lawyer, retained by the International Labor Defense, summoned District Commissioners to question them about the President having said he had no objection to the parade, but Judge Gus A. Schuldt refused to allow the testimony, holding it did not affect the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

Commissioners Crosby and Reichelderfer and Traffic Directors Van Duzer and Eldridge testified that a search of the records revealed that a parade permit had not been issued.

The trial was adjourned yesterday at 5 p. m. until 1 p. m. today, following testimony by Inspector Albert J. Headley and 25 policemen, who identified persons they arrested.

Inspector Headley did not deny that clubs were used on some of the demonstrators, but said he was not aware of the policemen making any attack on the parade.

The trial was confined to the question of whether an attempt to parade without a permit was made.

Unemployed Present White House Petition

While 35 of their comrades were being tried in Police Court on charges of parading without a permit, 13 members of the Unemployed Council of Washington called at the White House yesterday afternoon to present a petition to Louis Howe, President Roosevelt's secretary.

The petition, addressed to the President, is from the National Committee of Unemployed Councils. It contains a 12-page plea for relief to the unemployed and destitute. It is signed by I. Amter, national secretary of the organization.

Death of Two Men Declared Suicide

Ray, 74, Retired Lawyer, and Welsh, 52, Guard, Used Pistols.

Certificates of suicide were issued yesterday in the death of two men who were found shot Monday with their pistols lying nearby.

J. E. R. Ray, 74, 1012 N street northwest, a retired lawyer, was found dead in his room with a bullet wound in his head. Tied in his room was a pedigreed Boston bull, his constant companion for years.

James P. Welsh, 52, 1623 G street southeast, retired White House policeman and employed as a guard at the Interior Building, was found shot to death early yesterday in a men's rest room in the building. He left two notes indicating his act was caused by worry.

An average of six out of a possible seven in scholarship for the freshman year is required for admission. Miss Hoch is a junior in the college of liberal arts. Her home is at 110 Maryland avenue northeast.

"Be Careful!"

ONE-ACT PLAY SEEN AS IMPORTANT LINK IN THEATER REBIRTH

Harmony Keynote of Dinner at Madrillon of Drama Groups.

Predictions that the one-act play will have a prominent place in the rebirth of the theater in this country were made by Clifford Brooke, well-known director; Helen Lackaye, actress and director, and Fred Hand, theatrical producer of many years' experience, at a dinner last night at the Madrillon for participants in the recent District one-act play tournament.

Players who had expressed severe criticism of the choice of plays for the final contest circled the festive board in an atmosphere of complete harmony, signed a tacit declaration of peace and made plans for a bigger and better tournament next year.

Tells Stage Anecdotes.

Mr. Brooke revealed that movement is under way for the establishment of a theater exclusively devoted to one-act plays. These one-act plays would go on tour throughout the country from New York. The director told anecdotes of experiences with John Drew, Mrs. Leslie Carter, the Barrymores and other greats of the theater.

Miss Lackaye told of her experiences in the theater and defined the one-act play as "terse truths told in tall type."

Mr. Hand declared that the future of the one-act play is in the hands of community drama groups. Local amateurs, he said, are particularly fortunate in having a board of education interested enough in making up-to-date stages available.

Cahill Bit Praised.

Discussing the recent tournament, Mr. Hand said that in his opinion the brief piece of acting given by Thomas Cahill as the judge in "Betrayal" was "a wonderful performance."

Harold Snyder, who was in charge of lighting and staging in the tournament, was highly complimented by Mr. Hand.

Gideon A. Lyon, associate editor of the Evening Star, asserted that the drama will live regardless of competitive amusements.

Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, presided. The party was arranged by Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, head of the Community Center Department.

Quartet Stranded By Theft of Auto

Four pretty girls—composing the quartet of the God's Bible School, Cincinnati, Ohio—who drove here with two friends in a four-passenger coupe to sing for the gathering of prohibition leaders, apparently were stranded last night.

While the girls were singing in Calvary Baptist Church, the car, owned by Stuart Reed, secretary to former Representative William D. Upshaw, Prohibition party candidate for President, was stolen from its parking place on Eighth street near H street.

While the police are seeking the stolen car, Mr. Reed, his wife and the four girls—who are well known in Cincinnati for their radio programs—are wondering how they are going to get home. The girls are Edith Kirkendall, Margaret August, Sarah Mae Rooker and Gladys Dean. All are working their way through school.

St. Elizabeth's Patient Is Found Dead at Home

Paul Edward Anderson, 26, said to be an escaped St. Elizabeth's Hospital patient, was found dying from a bullet wound in his head last night in the parlor of his home at 1203 D street northeast. Members of Anderson's family said they heard a shot and rushed downstairs to find him slumped on the couch, a 38 caliber revolver in his hand. He was pronounced dead a few minutes later at Casualty Hospital. Police believe Anderson committed suicide.

BISHOP HUGHES RAPS ROOSEVELT'S STAND AT DRY CONFERENCE

Leaders Recess Until Today After Failing to Agree on Their Stand.

Gathered here to devise ways and means for combating the eighteenth amendment repeal proposal, prohibition leaders debated long and loud yesterday at the Calvary Baptist Church and recessed until today without agreeing on a statement of their stand to the people.

Earlier, at a meeting at the Raleigh Hotel, the more than 1,000 dry leaders heard Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident Methodist Bishop of Washington, attack the stand of President Roosevelt on prohibition in an address which sounded the keynote of the conclave.

Claims Equal Success.

"The eighteenth amendment," said Bishop Hughes, "in my opinion has done as well as business, and if prohibition needs a Moses so does business and banking and agriculture and all of the rest of the pursuits of American men."

Machinery for State conventions and what should be the final stand of the conference on methods of selecting delegates and by what types of elections formed the main bone of contention.

A committee on statement had previously drawn up a manifesto, but this was sent back after three hours' debate to clarify the section regarding the political machinery to be evolved in putting the repeal proposal before the States.

To Reshape Resolution.

Former Representatives Ketcham, Republican, and Hudson, Republican, both of Michigan, and E. B. Dunford, general counsel for the Antisaloon League, were designated to aid the committee in reshaping the resolution of statement.

Last night a song service was held by the conferees, with a number of short talks by leaders from various sections of the country interspersed.

Today the conference is expected to dispose of the question of statement and, before ending the parley here, shape a comprehensive plan of combating ratification of the repeal proposal.

A number of prominent dry orators addressed the night session. The speakers included Bishop H. Lester Smith, Cincinnati; Mrs. D. L. Colvin, of New York; former Representative Ketcham (Republican), Michigan; Mrs. John Neff, jr., of Nebraska; Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown, of Evanston, Ill., and Bishop George C. Clements, of African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

Wife Saves Husband Overcome by Smoke

Harry Mooney, 35, of 1114 H street northwest, was overcome by smoke in his apartment when a cigarette is believed to have ignited a couch he was lying on. His wife found him unconscious on the smoldering couch and, after pulling him to safety, called fire apparatus.

Mooney was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was discharged late last night, fully recovered.

Prisoner, on Dry Count, Is Found Hanging in Cell

John O'Brien, 45, 622 Twenty-second street northwest, arrested on a drunk charge, was discovered in a cell hanging by his shirt, which was tightly knotted around his neck.

He was transferred to Gallinger Hospital. His condition was said not to be serious.

Man Accidentally Shoots Self.

William Jones, 26, colored, accidentally shot himself in the right hand while removing the safety catch of his revolver while cleaning it in his home at 618 Third street southwest. He was treated at the Sanitary Mission Hospital.

Burglars Get $8 in Loot.

Cigarettes and cash totaling $8 were reported stolen from the delicatessen of Mrs. Julia Freeman, 705 Kenyon street northwest, by burglars Monday night.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SO convinced are the RKO executives that Wheeler and Woolsey are "sure fire" in "So This Is Africa," their Columbia comedy that is said to be the funniest they have ever made, that this highly seasoned and hotly peppered burlesque of the familiar jungle adventure-film is being brought to Fifteenth street one day ahead of schedule. Or maybe it is mersly that Master Hardie Menkin, the Capitol's champion schedule smasher, is up to his old tricks again.

ROBT. WOOLSEY.

For it is Manager Meakin who calls up to say that "So This Is Africa" will take possession of the screen at RKO-Keith's tomorrow morning, which is by the way of being Thursday, March 9. Richard Dix, "The Great Jasper," comes off tonight.

Since your demand for an advance hint of the nature of "So This Is Africa" is so peremptory, it may be inkled that Alexander and Wilbur have five mangy lions, won in a raffle, in their vaudeville act. The act is so bad that it lasts for a complete run of one consecutive performance! In the meantime, a Hollywood movie company faces the dilemma of producing a stupendous animal picture, or else go broke. They have the beautiful Mrs. Johnson-Martini (and what a subtle bit of lampooning THAT is!), the world's greatest authority on Africa and its customs, for director. In a bright moment, an ofifce boy suggests taking Alexander and Wilbur and their lions along!

Now if you will let go of my hand, I think you can go on from there alone.

And no sooner is that flash off the wire than comes one from the Loew executive offices, apprising that the three Barrymores will not be seen in "Rasputin and the Empress," for the first time at popular prices, at the Palace, beginning Friday.

Contrary to earlier announcement, "Rasputin" has been yanked and in its place will be presented "Fast Workers," in which the principal roles are played by John Gilbert, Mae Clarke and Robert Armstrong. This is a picture that was originally known by the title of "Rivets"—from which it may be gathered that it ought to be red hot!

So then it comes to be Jimmy Lake's turn to explain about the impending change of policy at the Gayety.

Beginning this Sunday, unit shows once more will be the weekly order at Washington's only burlesque theater, supplanting the stock troupe that of late weeks has been so eminently successful under the astute guidance of Mr. Lake.

These touring road companies will present a cast of twelve principals and a chorus of eighteen each week and will travel over an eight-week "wheel" of which Washington will be an important spoke.

Many will hate to see the stock company go, at that.

Believe it or not, over the inaugural week-end—meaning Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday—in excess of 56,000 patrons have filed in and out of Loew's Fox Theater to see Amos 'n' Andy in the flesh. It's a good thing there is a depression on, or they probably would have torn down the theater!

It is Gerald Goode, a frankly prejudiced commentator, who puts it down in writing that Arturo Toscanini, dean of the world's conductors, who yesterday led the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, of New York, in its last Washington concert, has always been an addict of Podrecca's "The Piccoli," now playing at the National. Toscanini has described "The Piccoli" as one of the finest entertainments on the contemporary stage.

Yet, it seems to us, now that we have seen "The Piccoli," that Sig. Toscanini's estimate errs on the side of understatement. "The Piccoli" is one of the most amazing exhibitions of creative showmanship, imagination, dexterity and expert timing the modern theater has ever seen. Under no circumstances miss it.

Well, there is some balm in Gilead. I see by the signs on the front of them that there are still some good seats available, at $5 each, in Stands 9 and 10, commanding a view of the entire Avenue from the Treasury to the Capitol! That, you will admit, is a great help!

And by now you probably know what is meant by a non de scrip banking situation!

ONE DEAD, 4 HURT IN GENERAL FIGHT AT UNION STATION

Knife-Wielder Dies in Hospital After Outbreak at Terminal.

Four persons were injured and an itinerant who went berserk is dead as the result of a wild battle early yesterday at Union Station.

Frank H. Martin, a station officer, reported to police that a hanger-on, later identified as John E. Craig, 42, of New York, suddenly drew a large pocket knife when Martin questioned him.

Policeman Fred Rawlinson, who hurried to the scene, said that he took Martin's blackjack, while the station officer was being held at bay with the knife. A spectator, Carl Doney, 512 Second street northwest, joined the policemen, and together they subdued Craig, but suffered several lacerations. Martin's coat was cut to shreds. At Emergency Hospital Craig again became violent, kicking, biting and clawing. Policeman R. E. Maust was bitten, and Rawlinson kicked in the stomach.

Craig died while undergoing examination. His local address is 234 Thirteenth street northeast, but it is thought that his home is in New York.

An investigation was begun by Capt. William E. Holmes, commander of the First Precinct. Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered the body to the Morgue. An inquest will be ordered and an analysis of the man's stomach made. The analysis was ordered to determine if Craig had been drinking.

Martin and Rawlinson were admitted to the hospital for treatment, although their condition is said to be not serious. Maust and Doney were discharged after first-aid treatment.

Traffic Lights Sought For Wisconsin Avenue

As a means of alleviating the hazardous traffic conditions on Wisconsin avenue, the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night asked that traffic lights be installed on the avenue at Albemarle street and Nebraska avenue.

The association also favored a revaluation of District property for taxation purposes.
